POLISH AVIATORS FORCED DOWN IN TEST FOR SEA TRIP

Break in Radiator of Plane Compels Them to Land Near Abbeville, 100 Miles North of Paris.

LEFT LE BOURGET FIELD AT 5:55 A. M.

Their Secrecy Caused Rumors That They Were Attempting Trans-Atlantic Flight.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, April 28.—The Polish airmen, Maj. Louis Idzikowski and Maj. Casimir Kubala, who hopped off early this morning for an unknown destination, landed at Forest Montiers near the village of Crecy, at 2 o'clock this afternoon because of a break in the radiator of their machine, says a dispatch from Abbeville, 100 miles north of Paris. A tire burst when the machine landed. The aviators plan to fly to Villacoublay near Paris tomorrow. There they expect to give their engine a final tuning Monday.

The aviators notified the authorities at Le Bourget of their landing, and added that they were not returning to that place tonight.

When the two Polish army flyers took off at 5:55 o'clock this morning, their destination was not known and there were rumors that they would attempt a trans-Atlantic flight. It also was stated that they were merely making an additional test of their plane, which had already performed satisfactorily on various long-distance flights.

The aviators left Le Bourget at 6:50 a. m., announcing that they intended to make an all-day test flight over the seacoast in the 650-horsepower biplane in which they hope later to cross the Atlantic to New York by way of the Azores.

The plans for the Polish trans-Atlantic flight have been under way for more than a year under the auspices of the Polish Ministry of War. During this time the flyers were in France undergoing special training and selecting their machine. A biplane of the S. E. C. M.-Amiot type, with a powerful Lorraine Dietrich motor. The plane is said to be capable of a nonstop flight of 8500 kilometers (5281 miles).

The S. E. C. M.-Amiot planes are three-seater night bombers. The fuselage is of duralumin tubes, with split strut fittings, the bracing being mainly carried out by diagonal tubes in front of, and steel rods behind the wings. The top wing is larger in span than the lower one. The maximum speed of this type of plane is set at 220 kilometers (136 miles) an hour.

STANDARD OIL OF NEW YORK UP $4 A SHARE ON EXCHANGE

Goes to $39, Peak Price Since Listing; Other Petroleum Stocks Bought Heavily.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 28.—A rapid bull market in the petroleum shares, particularly the Standard group, on the New York Stock Exchange today, contrasted with extensive profit-taking sales in many of the hitherto popular stocks.

Standard Oil of New York was rushed up more than $4 a share across $39, the highest price since it was listed last year, and this rise gave the bulls courage to place enormous orders for other domestic and foreign petroleum issues, including Phillips, Mexican Seaboard and Maracaibo.

Heavy buying orders also were distributed for some tobacco, public utility and mining shares, in which advances ran from $2 to $4. Some of the recently quiet issues came to life, Western Electric in particular jumping nearly $4 a share. Although most of the Eastern railways slipped backward, Central of New Jersey continued to gain, rising $7 to $357.

Numerous stocks which have been in strong demand recently were sold freely toward the close, including Chesapeake & Ohio, Nickel Plate, General Motors and Allis Chalmers. Some severe breaks occurred in various specialties, Natfonal Tea, for instance, ending $11, International Silver $7 and Wright Acronautical $4.

MILITIA GRAFTERS SENTENCED

DETROIT, Mich., April 28.—Six commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the Michigan National Guard, and two army Sergeants attached to the 125th Guard Infantry, who pleaded guilty to payroll padding and pay check forging at the Detroit armory.

Federal Judge Charles C. Simons sentenced them to terms of from a year and a day to two years in United States prison at Leavenworth, Kan.

Two Women Dancers End Lives On Stage in View of Audience

Leap to Death From Fly Gallery of Moscow Theater — Both Said to Have Been in Love With Same Man.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, April 28.—Agnessa Koreleva and Natalie Aksenova, ballet dancers, both 20 years old, gave a tragic touch last night to the latest revolutionary ballet called "Red Poppy" when they plunged to death from the fly gallery to the stage in full view of the audience and just as the curtain was about to fall.

Both girls, their hands tied, fell in the middle of the stage just as the orchestra struck up the thunderous revolutionary hymn, The Internationale.

Fellow artists who knew the girls well expressed the opinion that the dancers had agreed to commit suicide together because of an unusual romance. They said the girls had fallen in love with a scene painter, Kurilko. Devoted to each other and yet desperately in love with the painter, it was thought they chose death together as the best way out of the situation.

The ballet is packed full of heroic exploits and to the spectators at a distance, who had not heard the agonized cry of the dancers, drowned as it was by the thunderous music, the leap seemed like a novel stage trick with dummies.

To the Corps de Ballet, however, who at that moment came from the wings advancing to mid stage in a dance of revolutionary triumph, the tragedy was only too apparent.

The curtain fell immediately hiding from the audience the panic and tears of the ballerinas.

HIGH HEELS SPOIL SHAPE OF WOMEN'S LEGS, DR. MAYO SAYS

Cause Calves to Lose Their Curves, Rochester (Minn.) Surgeon Asserts.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 28.—Women are sacrificing the shape of their legs to high heels in the opinion of Dr. Charles Mayo, eminent surgeon of Rochester, Minn., who is here on a vacation.

"Legs are really an interesting study nowadays," he said today. "Women are losing their calves. These high heeled shoes they are wearing are completely changing the shape of their legs.

"You know, after watching women walking on their high heels I made an experiment. I took several thick cork blocks and strapped them under my own heels and tried walking on them—as the women do. I found that the arrangement made my calves absolutely useless. In other words, the women, by using high-heeled shoes, are gradually atrophying their calves. And you can see for yourself what it's doing to their legs."

Women also are getting shorter, according to Mayo.

"They ride in automobiles too much," he explained. "So, not walking, they get shorter. And because they're getting shorter, they are wearing higher heels so they can walk beside their men."

FILM DISTRIBUTORS CHARGED WITH ILLEGAL PRACTICES

Two Equity Suits Brought by Government in Federal District Court.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Ten leading motion-picture producers and distributors, the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, of which Will Hays is the head, and 32 film boards of trade in as many cities were named as defendants yesterday in equity suits brought by the Government in the Federal District Court.

One of the suits charged that the credit rule adopted by the industry is illegal in that it deprives every exhibitor who acquires a theater, by purchase or transfer, of the right to have any court determine whether the transfer or purchase was fraudulent. The other suit questions the legality of the arbitration plan which requires every exhibitor to waive the right to have any court settle a dispute with another film board.

The Government seeks a permanent injunction against the defendants to restrain them from continuing the alleged conspiracy in restraint of trade.

PENNSYLVANIA BURIED UNDER A 14-INCH SNOW

Five Other States Also Suffer in April Blizzards—Traffic Tied Up.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28. — Snow plows, which had been put away for the winter, were out in force today, clearing roads blocked by a heavy snow storm. In some places the snow was 14 inches deep.

Driven by a high wind, huge drifts piled up retarding highway and railroad traffic and interfering with wire communication. In many parts of the state, fruit trees already were in full bloom and early vetgetables were peeping through the earth.

Western and Central Pennsylvania appeared to have been hardest hit. The storm started early last night and continued for several hours. In most places the snow had turned to rain today, aiding the state highway forces in opening the roads.

Southern States Swept by Storm and Snow.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 28.—The South took advantage of clearing weather today to survey the havoc wrought over a 48-hour period by windstorms, snow and floods.

Snow fell in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky and North Carolina yesterday and the Shenandoah valley of Virginia, ordinarily dressed in apple blossoms at this time of the year, was buried under 12 inches of snow with drifts reaching six feet in the highways.

Windstorms from the Gulf struck Florida north of Tampa and traversed the State in less than two hours, emerging on the east coast near Daytona Beach. It was more than 12 hours, however, before the 150-mile area was again in communication with the world. At Jackson, Miss., two were injured and $50,000 property damage caused by high winds.

BALTIMORE-TO-ROME NONSTOP FLIGHT IS PLANNED FOR MAY 10

American Fascisti Sponsoring Project; Italian Ace to Pilot Bellanca Plane.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 28.—Plans for a direct non-stop flight from Baltimore to Rome, and a similar return flight, in a Bellanca plane now under construction have been completed, representatives of Count Thaon di Revel, president of the Fascisti League of North America, announced last night. They said the projected trans-Atlantic flight was scheduled for May 10.

Appearing before Mayor Broening last night, the Italian group asked that the City of Baltimore sponsor the trip and pay half the expenses of the flight, exclusive of the cost of the airplane.

The pilot will be Chevalier Cesare Savelli, former World War ace in the Italian army, Edward S. Napolis said. Co-pilots will include Roger Q. Williams and Commander Pietro Bonelli.

PRINCESS - SCULPTRESS SUED

Pola Negri's Sister-in-Law Accused of Plagiarism.

(Copyright, 1928.)

PARIS, April 28.—Princess Mdivani, a sculptress sister-in-law of Pola Negri, is being sued for plagiarism by Guiraud Riviere, French sculptor, who made a model for a monument glorifying aviation and automobile speed kings.

The Paris automobile salon commissioned the Princess to design a trophy which would be awarded to the pilot accomplishing the most remarkable exploit during the year. Her model, Riviere says, bears such close resemblance to his that he brought suit.

BREMEN FLYERS PLACE FLAGS ON BENNETT'S GRAVE

Simple Ceremony Is Held at Arlington National Cemetery—Wreath Also Laid on Mound.

WILL TAKE TRAIN BACK TO NEW YORK

House Votes to Award Distinguished Flying Cross to Airmen — Measure Now Goes to Senate.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The crew of the trans-Atlantic plane, Bremen, left Bolling Field for Union Station at 12:45 p. m. to take a train for New York. They will travel in a special car on the Pennsylvania Railroad train leaving here at 1:05 p. m. The decision to go by train was reached after two hours' consideration of the weather conditions which was not favorable for flying.

The House today passed the James bill to authorize the President to bestow the Distinguished Flying Cross upon the three flyers. The measure now goes to the Senate.

The House also voted the same honor for the French flyers, Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrux, and the Italian, Francisco de Pinedo. At the same time, the Senate passed a House measure authorizing the Government to make a medal commemorating the flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from New York to Paris.

This was the first time the Government has given the Distinguished Flying Cross to a foreigner and the bill was passed only after Senator Blease (Dem.), South Carolina, had created some commotion by objecting to "this hero worship which I think has gone far enough."

Early Visit to Cemetery.

The aviators went to Arlington National Cemetery early, and participated in a simple ceremony at the grave of Bennett, who succumbed to illness contracted while flying to their aid at Greenly Island.

Capt. Hermann Koehl placed a wreath on the fresh mound, which was already covered by floral tributes. Then Baron von Huenefeld unfolded the flag of his country to top the wreath of his companion.

He was followed by Maj. James Fitzmaurice, who lifted a huge silken emblem of green, white and orange. This Irish flag was spread sidewise over the grave.

Finally Maj. Howard Williams, commandant at Bolling Field, put the American flag beside the Irish flag.

Miss Junkers Places Wreath.

The American flag placed on Bennett's grave also was brought across the Atlantic on the Bremen. Miss Herta Junkers also placed a wreath of green on the mound.

Throughout the ceremony the flyers stood with heads bowed in the rain. Each was asked to say something over the radio, but declined to do so.

After leaving Bennett's burial place, the group visited the grave of Lieut. Wooster, who lost his life in the disaster to the American Legion plane, which crashed in trials made in preparation for an attempt to span the Atlantic.

An army Fokker plane, offered by Maj. H. C. Davidson, commandant of Bolling Field, had been placed at their disposal, for their return to New York, but owing to a driving rain they decided not to fly back.

Though the flyers did not come here to be officially received, hundreds of persons traveled through a cold, driving rain to the station to welcome the party shortly after 10 o'clock last night and cheered the flyers until Bolling Field officers took them away. Baron Huenefeld was the last to arrive at the field, going first to the German Embassy to pay his respects to Ambassador von Prittwitz.

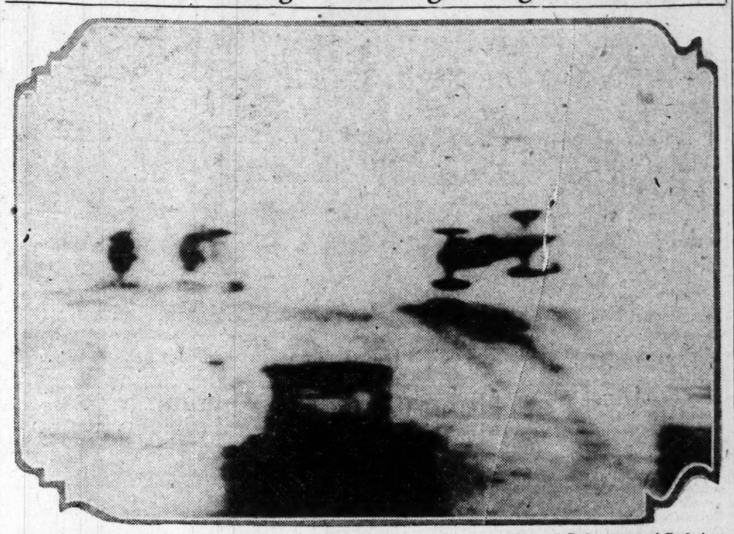

Arriving in the private car of E. K. Rochester, general manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad, the flyers found waiting to receive them officials of the German Embassy and Irish legation, Assistant Secretaries Warner and Davison, American department air chiefs. Their reception was as informal as possible because of the nature of their visit.

Broadcast Short Address.

Fitzmaurice and Koehl received a brief lesson in radio broadcasting before posing for flashlight photographs. Both were led to a microphone set up in the concourse to shout "Hello" to the audience of Station WJZ. Huenefeld, adjust-

PRESIDENT WILL NOT INSIST ON AUTO TAX

Ready to Approve Senate Committee Measure for $203,000,000 Reduction.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Although the Senate Finance Committee's $203,000,000 tax reduction bill ignores the administration's demand for retention of the automobile tax, President Coolidge is ready to approve it.

Opposition of the President to the proposal of the committee as well as of the House to wipe out the 3 per cent automobile levy developed yesterday, but it was made clear that Mr. Coolidge realizes it is the province of Congress to determine how the revenue should be raised.

For that reason, the President is not going to turn against the Senate bill on account of the automobile tax repeal alone. His only concern is that Congress make sure that sufficient revenue will be raised to meet Government expenses and he feels that the $203,000,000 measure will not go beyond the means of the Treasury.

Approval by the Finance Committee of the House provision for repeal of the automobile tax virtually ends the fight for this action which has been waged for several years by the automobile industry against the wishes of Secretary Mellon and President Coolidge. Democrats are practically a unit for this step and Republican approval of it settled the issue.

President Coolidge believes the automobile tax should be employed to raise sufficient funds at least to support the Federal road building enterprises. National road expenditures approximate $75,000,000 annually and it was estimated the automobile tax yielded $66,000,000.

Meanwhile the committee completed work yesterday on the $290,000,000 House bill and Chairman Smoot announced he expected to take it up for consideration in the Senate next Thursday.

TWO KILLED IN PLANE CRASH AT MARSHALL, MO.

New York Flyer Had Taken Ground Instructor Up for Flight.

By the Associated Press.

MARSHALL, Mo., April 28.—An airplane crashed to earth five miles south of here at 6:30 p. m. yesterday, killing its two occupants, George K. Malkmaus, 32 years old, of Kansas City, Mo., and Harold P. Hutchison, 23, of New York.

The plane was owned by Hutchison, who had been visiting here about a week. Malkmaus was a ground instructor at the Marshall Flying School here and accepted an invitation from Hutchison to go up in the latter's plane.

Witnesses said the plane seemed to go into a flat spin at an altitude of about 400 feet, after being in the air 15 or 20 minutes.

EXPELLED MEMBER SUES ROTARY CLUB FOR $100,000

Chicagoan Charges He Has Suffered Heavy Financial Loss Since Being Ousted.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 28.—Since being expelled from the Chicago Rotary Club last fall, Neal F. Mears, genealogist, has suffered much embarrassment and a heavy financial loss, he set forth in a suit for $100,000 damages filed yesterday against the Rotarians.

Mears charged the club was malicious and discriminatory in dropping him from the rolls while he was in Los Angeles for his health. He said the club used as grounds the fact that he had gone to California, but said he had not changed his residence.

PASSENGER MISSING AFTER LAUNCH UPSETS

Unidentified Man Thought to Have Lost Life Off East Grand Avenue.

An unidentified man is thought to have been drowned when a two-cylinder motorboat, which Edward Bleil, 16 years old, 4405 West Pine boulevard, was trying out for the Olive Cycle and Motor Co., 1045 North Grand boulevard, capsized in the wash of a Mississippi steamboat at noon today.

Bleil was idling against the Mississippi current off East Grand avenue when the man, well-dressed and about 24 years old, waved to him from the shore. Bleil eased in to the bank.

"I'm interested in speedboats," said the young man. "Do you mind taking me for a ride?"

He got in and Bleil made for midstream. He was heading against the current in midchannel again when the steamer passed. His light craft, caught in the swell, turned over.

Bleil, coming to the surface, caught hold of the capsized boat and looked around for his passenger. He was not in sight, and Bleil, after a few minutes' search, swam ashore, pushing the boat in front of him and drifting considerably with the current.

A tweed topcoat which had been carried by his passenger was caught on the boat. It bore the label of a tailor in Burlington, Ia. Bleil described the man as 5 feet, 7 or 8 inches tall, weighing about 150 pounds, with dark hair and complexion and wearing shell-rimmed glasses.

THREE DROWNED IN GALE OFF COAST AT ATLANTIC CITY

Two of Their Companions Rescued by Coast Guardsmen While Towing Ship.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 28.—Three men were drowned in a terrific gale off the coast today when the tackle jammed on a lifeboat they and two companions attempted to launch from the drifting river steamer, South Shore.

Their two companions were rescued by coast guardsmen. The dead are Capt. Noah H. Turner and Quartermaster William Hicks, Negroes, and Chief Engineer Allen, all of Baltimore.

The steamer was being towed from New York to Baltimore to be junked.

DORAN BELIEVES U. S. CAN NEVER STOP DRY VIOLATIONS

Prohibition Commissioner Says, However, Law Will Be More Strictly Enforced.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Belief that the United States Government will never be able to halt prohibition violations was expressed here yesterday at a luncheon address by James M. Doran, Commissioner of Prohibition.

Dr. Doran declared, however, the Government will make violations of the law more and more difficult. He added the law entwined with every criminal statute because through its violations criminals and gang leaders are able to secure additional revenue.

He urged the "good people" to interest themselves in their own Government as an aid to law enforcement. Referring to the Chicago primary, Doran said that at one stage it looked like they would have to withdraw every Federal agent in that city to avoid bloodshed. He added, however, the agents would "try to clean that place up."

GANG KILLER FOUND SLAIN IN ROADHOUSE ON EAST SIDE

"Piggy" Weller Discovered on Porch of "Villa Iris" on Collinsville Road With Eight Bullets in Body.

FOUR MEN LAID AMBUSH FOR HIM

Member of Orchestra Says Intruders Decoyed Victim to the Place by False Phone Message

"Piggy" Weller, Cuckoo gangster and convicted murderer, was found shot to death early today at "Villa Iris," his notorious Madison County roadhouse, the East Side headquarters of the Cuckoo gang and scene of frequent brawls.

An anonymous telephone message to East St. Louis police led to discovery of the body at 7:15 o'clock. Persons living in the neighborhood heard shots at 9:30 o'clock last night, but did not investigate, as shooting was not unusual at the roadhouse. The resort is on the west side of the Collinsville road, three miles north of East St. Louis, a quarter mile south of the Madison Kennel Club.

"Piggy"—his given name was John, but his 209 pounds inspired the familiar nickname—was lying on his back on a porch, the entrance to a dance hall and barroom and to another dance hall which was closed by the Government for Volstead act violations.

He had been shot eight times in the forehead, nose and abdomen. Seventeen .45-caliber shells were strewn on the porch. Indications were that both a submachine gun and an automatic pistol had been used to end "Piggy's" checkered career of crime.

Four men, some of them masked, took possession of the roadhouse, forced an employe to decoy Weller to the place by telephone and shot him as he walked from his automobile into an ambush on the front porch, according to a story told by George Gerstnecker Jr., a member of the three-piece orchestra at "Villa Iris."

Gerstnecker said that seven employes and about 16 young men and women were in the roadhouse when the intruders arrived. Two masked men, carrying machine guns, walked into the new dance hall at 7:45 o'clock and made customers and employes lie down on the floor behind the bar. They then demanded of Gerstnecker and a waiter named "Gus" to know where Weller was.

Assured that "Piggy" had not been around the leader forced Tony Stocker, the doorman, to telephone Weller. The gangster was told "to come on over, something important has come up." Gerstnecker said the others remained outside. When Weller arrived an hour later and stepped onto the porch and the assassins opened fire. After the murder, Gerstnecker said, he and the other occupants of the roadhouse were ordered to leave.

Victim Served Term for Murder.

The place was dark and deserted at 10:30 o'clock, when two Deputy Sheriffs drove past. "Piggy" Weller, fully clothed even to his hat, spent the night alone on the porch. Weller was 31 years old. St. Louis police records show he was arrested 76 times for investigation, was convicted of second-degree murder in 1918 and served five and a half years in the State Penitentiary. In 1917 he served a term in the workhouse for attempted robbery. He and two other men, since shot to death, were suspected of safe robberies in the Victoria Building two years ago in which $30,000 in jewelry was stolen.

Quarreled With Partner.

Associated with Weller in the operation of the roadhouse was Louis Mandel, another Cuckoo, who was acquitted of the murder of Dr. A. H. Sante in St. Louis last year. Authorities understand Mandel quarreled with Weller a week ago and departed in anger.

Mandel was arrested this afternoon for questioning. He was taken into custody at Grand boulevard and Natural Bridge avenue, when riding in an automobile with a man who described himself as Frank J. Murphy, manager of the Red Top Cab Co., residing at the Y. M. C. A. In the car were three loaded pistols and a belt containing 50 cartridges.

Thomas O'Donnell, young East St. Louisan, now in a hospital recovering from a bullet wound, told police he became intoxicated at Villa Iris, April 13, and was beaten

BENNETT BURIED AT ARLINGTON IN DRENCHING RAIN

Thousands of Persons Present to Pay Final Tribute at Grave of Polar Flyer—Full Naval Honors.

CANOPY PROTECTED FUNERAL PARTY

Services Scarcely Audible—Wreath From Bremen Crew Among Floral Pieces.

By CHARLES MICHELSON.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Floyd Bennett received a grim burial despite the honors, fit for an Admiral, that were heaped upon his grave.

Rain fell in torrents, and a bitter wind almost tore the umbrellas from the vast throng that assembled yesterday afternoon to pay the last tribute to a gallant man who died in an effort to aid fellow flyers from a foreign land.

A double tent had been erected over the sepulcher, beneath which the mother, wife and brother of the hero and a small group of his associates were crowded. The lower section of the tent was barely big enough to cover the grave and leave place for the chaplains and the honor guard.

All through the short service the rain beat on the canvas, like the drumming of machine guns, drowning the voices of the holy men as they pronounced the prayers and spoke their eulogizes.

Beyond the covered space stood the people—thousands of them—wet and cold, wind-blown and weary, for many of them had stood for hours waiting for the ceremony. They could neither see nor hear, but they stood in the storm to the end.

Flowers From Bremen Flyers.

Dignitaries took their punishment with the plain people. Herbert Hoover stood in the rain, the German Ambassador was half in and half out of the marquee, and the Irish Minister was beside him. Great Britain and Italy sent their aviation attaches, and nearly every legation and embassy was represented.

About the tent were heaped flowers, wreaths, crosses, shields, broken propellers, all in blossoms. President Coolidge sent one of calla lilies and ferns; the German embassy, the Irish legation, the National Geographical Society, the American Legion, the various air stations and scores of other organizations contributed to the banks of flowers that were beaten by the rain and torn at by the wind.

The German flyers and their Irish colleague, in whose behalf the young aviator gave his life, were represented by beautiful wreaths, one inscribed: "To the heroic Floyd Bennett with the sympathy and admiration of Koehl, Von Huenefeld, Fitzmaurice."

Another with the same sentiment bore the name of Fraulein Herta Junkers, a third that of Bernt Balchen and the fourth Charles J. V. Murphy, who flew with Bennett on his last flight in the relief plane furnished by the New York World and other newspapers, that finally brought the marooned party from Greenly Island.

Burial Near Admiral Peary.

These wreaths were to have been placed by the flyers on the grave. When it became evident that they would not reach Bolling Field in time for the ceremonies, Maj. Davidson, commander of the field with Capt. Schwarzwaelder and Lieuts. Myers and Lundell, formed a committee to perform the service for the trans-Atlantic aviators.

An effort was made to keep the time of the expected arrival of the relief plane with the flyers secret, but the people of Washington knew that they were due sometime during the day and began to assemble at Bolling Field early in the morning. By afternoon there were thousands there.

Word that the flight had been cancelled did not arrive until mid-afternoon.

Warrant Officer Floyd Bennett rests among the nation's great. His grave is the highest point in the national cemetery facing the north, where he flew with Byrd across the Pole.

Fifty feet from him lies Admiral Peary. No further away sleeps Gen. Rosecranz, Lieutenant General Young and a dozen other famous soldiers.

It was 3:20 p. m. when the flag-draped casket came through the gate at the Union Station. Long before that hour the station was surrounded by people. The body bearers were six young men, warrant officers like him they bore to the waiting hearse. With them marched six naval Lieutenant aviators. Behind the bier came the mother and the wife of the hero, his brother and half-brother, the nurse who cared for Mrs. Bennett since the hour of her bereavement, Commander Byrd and others of the funeral party.

Heads Bared as Cortege Passes.

In the station there were assembled a group of Admirals, among them Moffet, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics; Assistant Secretary Robinson was represented by Commander Whiting, his aid, and Secretary Wilbur by Assistant Secretary for Aviation Warner. Col. Latrobe, military aid, represented the President.

As the casket was lifted from the carriage the vast crowd stood bareheaded in the rain. The President had sent a White House car for the use of the bereaved family. Oscar Coolican had sent a fleet of limousines which took care of others of the party. Another similar fleet had been sent to Bolling Field to transport the expected German and Irish flyers to Arlington. These served to transport Commander Davidson and the other officers who carried the flyers' wreaths to Bennett's grave.

The cortege of automobiles moved slowly through the city streets, past the Capitol, past the White House, with no other escort than the motor cycle policemen who kept the way clear. There were no crowds in the street, but everybody recognized what was passing and stood bareheaded as it passed.

Large Crowd at Arlington.

At Arlington the Navy took over the procession. The hearse gave place to an artillery caisson drawn by six great black horses ridden by soldiers. Instead of the formal escort to which a warrant officer is entitled, three squads of bluejackets, the entire enlisted force in this area, were ordered out to do honor to Bennett. Ahead marched the full Navy Band playing its dirge.

There was no expectation of such a crowd as assembled at Arlington. A few men from an infantry corps stood about the tents and the roped off inclosure. They almost were overwhelmed by the crowd which surged almost to the coffin as it was lifted from the gun carriage.

By the time the mourning party had reached the scene the people were packed densely right up to the open end of the tent. Commander Byrd and some of the others had to make a flying wedge to split the throng and let Mrs. Bennett and her mother through. Finally the inclosure was partly cleared and the ceremonies began.

These were simple and short. The Rev. L. E. Smith, pastor of the Norfolk Christian Church, recited the Twenty-third Psalm and followed it with a brief prayer. He gave way to Chief Chaplain Curtis R. Dickins, who dilvered the committment service and paid a tribute to the glory of the man who lay beneath the flag.

All the time the rain droned on the canvas and the wind whipped at the tent walls. At times only because the clergyman's lips were seen moving could those who stood 10 feet away know that anything was being said.

The clergyman recited Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar."

Three salvos from the rifles of the soldiers posted in the hollow back of the tent, "Taps" and it was over.

The crowd faded away, back to the long line of automobiles. The body of Machinist Floyd Bennett was alone except for the honor guard that stayed watch over him last night.

We were told that five navy planes circled over the grave during the ceremonies, dropping flowers. They could not be seen through the rain, their droning was lost in the rat-a-tat on the canvas roof and the flowers were whisked far away by the wind.

FEDERAL RESERVE REPORT ON BUSINESS

Industry Unchanged but Commodity Sales Show Increase, Review States.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—In a review of business conditions, the Federal Reserve Board declared that industrial production during March was in about the same volume as in February, with a seasonal increase in the distribution of commodities.

During the last month there were increases in bank credit and in member banks borrowing at reserve banks and open market money rates showed further advances. Between March 31 and April 18, the board said, loans and investments in principal cities reached the highest level on record, with an increase of $410,000,000.

"The advance was largely in loans on securities, which showed an increase of nearly $380,000,000, and in April were close to the high point of the first of the year," the review said.

"Loans for commercial purposes continued the increase which began in February and notwithstanding a small decline during the last week of the period, were nearly $350,000,000 larger on April 18 than at the end of January.

"The volume of reserve bank credit in use increased by $180,000,000 during the five weeks ending April 25, reflecting increased reserve requirements of member banks and a further net outflow of gold amounting to more than $30,000,000. Reserve bank holdings of securities were reduced by about $80,000,000 during the period, while discounts for member banks increased by $230,000,000.

Acceptance holdings also showed a small increase. A firmer tendency in the money market was evidenced at the end of March and during April by further increases in rates on call and time loans on securities under the heading of production, the board said the output of automobiles and trucks during March totaled 413,000, the largest production for any month since August, 1926, with large production continuing through the month of April.

"Production of manufacturers was maintained during March at the high level reached in February and the output of minerals also showed little change," the review continued. "Activity in the iron and steel industry also was maintained at a high level during March and April and lumber production was in larger volume than a year ago.

"Cotton and wool consumption declined in March, but silk deliveries were the largest on record. There was some decline in meat packing and in the production of sole leather and the output of boots and shoes in March showed less than the usual seasonal increase.

"Building contracts awarded were smaller in March than a year ago, while those for the first three weeks in April were in bout the same volume as in the corresponding period of last year. As a result of large contracts during the first two months of the year, total awards for the year to April 20 exceeded those for the same period of 1927.

"Sales of wholesale firms increased less than usual in March and were somewhat smaller than in the same month of last year. Sales of department stores on the other hand were about the same in March as in the preceding month and in March 1927. Stocks of merchandise carried in March by wholesale firms were larger while those of department stores were smaller than at this time last year. The general level of wholesale commodity prices showed little change in March and freight car loadings continued smaller than a year ago for all classes of commodities except grain and livestock."

Ford Plane Forced Down by Bad Weather.

By the Associated Press.

MILLER FIELD, Staten Island, N. Y., April 28.—The Ford tri-motored plane, which left Curtiss Field this morning for Washington, landed here less than an hour later on account of unfavorable weather conditions. Bernt Balchen, the pilot, and Richard G. Brophy, personal representative of Commander Richard E. Byrd, were undecided whether to continue the trip to the Capital or return to Curtiss Field.

New York to Welcome Flyers Officially Monday.

NEW YORK, April 28.—New York is ready to welcome the Bremen flyers, but the official festivities will not be held until Monday. On that morning the three flyers will board the City Tug Macom for a marine parade down the bay between lines of harbor craft.

A combination of rough seas and daylight saving may result in the wives of Capt. Koehl and Maj. Fitzmaurice missing this spectacle. The two women are en route to this country on the German Lloyd Liner Dresden, but the ship has been delayed by heavy seas.

QUITS DRIVING FOR A YEAR TO ESCAPE 30-DAY SENTENCE

Henry Schroeder, Who Had "Several Drinks of Home Brew," Didn't Remember Collision.

Henry A. Schroeder, 4343 Gano avenue, and Charles Vitale, 1417 North Fourteenth street, were found guilty of driving when intoxicated by Police Judge Rosecan yesterday and fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in the Workhouse. Vitale appealed, while Schroeder, because of his family, agreed to quit driving for a year on which promise the Court suspended sentence.

Four civilian witnesses, one a woman, whom he nearly ran down, and a policeman testified Vitale struck a parked car at 3640 Chouteau avenue on March 31. Vitale's version was that another motor car had run into and damaged his machine to the extent of $320. He admitted having had a "drink of wine."

Schroeder, who said he took "several drinks of home brew," told the Court he "did not remember" colliding with another automobile in the 1800 block on Market street, April 7.

Three youthful speeders pleaded guilty, and rather than go to the Workhouse for 10 days, agreed to quit driving for a month. They are: Henry Scharlott, 2737 Wyoming street; William Hammonds, 1221 Grattan street, and Jake Kohn, 4727 Newberry terrace.

I. C. C. DISAPPROVES MO.-PAC. LINE INTO CAPE GIRARDEAU

Commissioner Sullivan, in Report, Finds That Frisco Is Supplying All Necessary Service.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Plans of the Missouri Pacific Railroad to enter Cape Girardeau, Mo., by purchasing of existing lines and by new construction, were adversely reported on today in a preliminary finding of Interstate Commerce Commission Examiner Sullivan, who ruled that the program would involve an unnecessary duplication of facilities and would be adverse to public interest.

Under the plan presented to the commission, the Missouri Pacific would build three miles of new line from Illmo, Mo., to a connection with the Cape Girardeau Northern Railway, and would then purchase the Cape Girardeau Northern line running into the city. The St. Louis-San Francisco system protested, on the ground that it was now giving all necessary service and that traffic available would not support two trunk line systems.

The examiner concluded that the Frisco protest was justified.

Charles Maurice Dies on Boat.

Charles Maurice, 48 years old, captain of the Government dredge boat "Summit," died suddenly while the boat was anchored at the foot of Cherokee street this morning. He is believed to have suffered a heart attack. He resided at Cape Girardeau, Mo., with his wife.

WITNESSES DETAIL INSIDE WORKINGS OF POWER LOBBY

Chambers of Commerce Used to Spread Propaganda Against Government Ownership.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The Federal Trade Commission concluded four days of hearings in its investigation of power trust financing yesterday by looking further into the various activities of the National Electric Light Association. Commissioner Edgar A. McCulloch announced that hearings would be resumed next Wednesday.

Means used by the Electric Light Association to oppose Government ownership of power projects particularly Boulder Dam and Muscle Shoals, were brought out in further detail involving movements against municipally-operated plants and the selling of securities to consumers and employes, Chambers of Commerce and associated organizations.

The important witnesses were Paul Clapp of New York, managing director, and George F. Oxley of New York, assistant director, in charge of the information section of the association, and Clark Belden of Hartford, vice president of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce.

Urged Fight on Boulder Dam.

Belden disclosed that the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, through George B. Chandler of Columbus, had urged all the State chambers represented at a meeting in Atlantic City in February to pass resolutions opposing the Swing-Johnson bill. It was brought out that Ohio, Virginia and Illinois chambers had adopted such resolutions as well as the Executive Committee of the Connecticut chamber. The National Electric Light Association is a member of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Clapp testified that his organization used every avenue known to obtain favorable publicity for the power industry, while Oxley said he knew of one not used.

Asked by Robert E. Healy, chief counsel for the commission, what that one method was, Oxley replied:

"Sky writing."

Shares Sold to Customers.

Nearly a million customers and employes were induced in 1924 to buy utility stocks, 90 per cent of which are preferred shares, Clapp testified. The motives for distributing this stock was to promote good relations, get new capital, and the support of the shareholders in the fight against Government ownership, he said.

Oxley testified that he felt it his responsibility to obtain all the publicity against Government ownership that he could, and said he believed it fair to encourage local utility men to get editors to publish publicity matter and comment on it editorially.

Oxley said he furnished material to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. for a pamphlet which was circulated. Several documents published by the Investment Bankers' Association urging investments in utilities were taken from Oxley's files and introduced into the record.

"Contact" Men for Schools.

Oxley told Healy that he could not remember what particular work he wanted to do in connection with the Pennsylvania Legislature in 1924 as stated in a letter by him to J. S. S. Richardson of New York when Richardson was director of the utility information bureau in that State.

"Contact men" for educational institutions were recommended in documents introduced in connection with Clapp's testimony, which another pointed out the danger to the industry through the claims of successful operation of the Seattle (Wash.) municipally-owned power facilities.

Varying sums of money contributed to the General Federation of Women's Clubs, Harvard, the University of Michigan and Northwestern University by the association were made a part of the record. They ranged up to $30,000 a year.

The exhibits entered passed the thousand mark today.

RUSSIAN IMPERIAL FLAG DRAPES WRANGEL'S COFFIN

By the Associated Press.

BRUSSELS, April 28.—His coffin covered with the Russian imperial colors, Baron Peter Wrangel, leader of a vain fight against the Bolsheviks several years ago, was borne to a temporary grave today. The body later will be taken to Belgrade.

The funeral illustrated the plight of the Russian emigrants now scattered throughout Europe. In an unpretentious hearse and without official apparel, the body of the late General was taken to a church, the procession being headed by numerous Russian delegations from Belgium and abroad, carrying wreaths. There were three Orthodox priests and three uniformed old regime Cossack officers carrying the Imperial colors while a Cossack choir sang funeral marches.

The body was followed by the Baron's aged mother, his wife and children, who walked arm in arm behind the coffin. They were followed by members of the Russian colony in Brussels.

Transit Junket Secrets Pop Out in Debate When Aldermen Grow Personal

Wander Lost in the Turnstiles of New York, Says Wimer Who in Turn Is Reminded of Ball Park Days and Cabaret Nights.

Who was the faithful Alderman that lost himself in the turnstiles as he tried to make serious study of New York's rapid transit system?

And who were the festive fellows that made the Board of Alderman's rapid transit junket trip to the East two years ago, a trip after pleasure, a round of mild roistering, with the study of transportation measures a side issue to be taken up between drinks?

These and other interesting, if inconsequential, questions arose yesterday afternoon as the junketers —the members of the Rapid Transit Committee—met with the Ways and Means Committee, ostensibly to discuss pending rapid transit legislation, but actually to indulge in bitter recriminations.

The meeting opened peacefully enough with President Neun of the Board of Aldermen pleading for harmony, at least enough harmony to allow the transaction of business. There were two bills before the committee, he went on.

Mayor's and Wimer's Bills.

One of them, introduced by Alderman Wimer, the chairman of the Rapid Transit Committee, provides for a study of St. Louis subway problem and calls for an appropriation of $6000. The other, drawn by Mayor Miller, calls for $50,000 for a complete study of all types of transportation.

Sitting about the committee table, some with their hats on and some uncovered, the Aldermen listened quietly. But not for long. As Neun declared that he "felt Mayor Miller's bill was the more desirable," Alderman Wimer took up the cudgels.

Subways are all that should be considered, he said, thumping his fist on the table. An adequate survey had been made already. What was the idea of this new $50,000 survey anyhow? All that remained to be done was to convince the downtown interests that subways would not be prohibitive in cost. And so on.

Meanwhile, Alderman Studt, minus his usual black derby, paced nervously about the chamber, pausing now and then to lean against the wall and eye Wimer. Finally he broke in.

Nothing Personal, of Course.

"I'm not trying to introduce any personalities, Sam," he said caustically, "but I'd like to know why you wanted $25,000 at first for your survey and later cut it to $6000."

"That was just a shot at random," Wimer replied stoutly, while the other conferees leaned back with widening grins. "The comptroller's office threw up its hands at the idea of spending $25,000. Now it's willing to spend $50,000. I'd like to know how that happens —I would."

President Neun remarked that "You didn't consider the others on the committee, Sam; you're always seeking the limelight." Whereat Wimer swelled with indignation.

"I have no political ambition," he said heatedly. "I'm going to retire from public life. I've studied night and day on this transportation problem. It cost me $25,000 in time and money to make a trip East on my own hook to study other transportation systems. I'm informed on this subject, I am. You're not informed on the subject."

"I'm better informed than you are," Neun rejoined.

"Well, you may be a lawyer and have a sheepskin," Wimer broke in, "but I'm qualified. I've studied this thing." And he went on to tell of his study of the problem on the junketing trip. That touched Alderman Wander, a member of the junketing party, who had remained silent.

Talks Out of School.

"What are you talking about?" Wander interjected finally. "I did the work on the trip. You fellows spent your time at the ball game and cabareting at night. I took the notes and you had to come to me to find out what we had learned."

"Aw," said Wimer, "you're the fellow that got lost in the turnstiles. We had to put a rope around your neck to keep you from straying away."

"I got lost looking for you fellows while you were chasing around," Wander replied, and began to go into details. Alderman Nangle, a spectators, who had not been on the trip and could, therefore, afford to be jocular, held up a hand in mock reproof.

"Stop him, stop him," he shouted, pointing at the indignant Wander. "Don't let him tell any more."

Wander, meanwhile, had risen from his seat and was pacing the chamber.

Ball Park Sessions.

"You were to meet your brother-in-law, remember that?" he demanded of Wimer. "You were so hot to get out that night that I had to stay at the hotel and meet him."

"Well, we worked in the daytime, didn't we?" asked Alderman Otto.

"Yes," rejoined Wander scornfully, "at the ball park."

It was on this trip, the Post-Dispatch learned, that Sam G. Greenland, now general manager of the Public Service Co., met the junketers in the East and provided them with theater tickets and other forms of entertainment. Wimer's Rapid Transit committee made two junkets to the East in August, 1924, and October, 1925, costing $4570.

Thus the meeting went on. The members of the Ways and Means Committee, who are considering the transit bills and had merely invited the other committee members in to get the benefit of their opinions, found itself entertained, but not working. Finally the junketers talked themselves out.

So the meeting ended. Even to the last, however, someone remembered that they had come together for business.

"Well," he called out, "we'll have another meeting next Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock."

UNION CHIEFS TAKE UP STREET CAR WAGE ROW

International President Mahon Arrives to Meet Officers of Local.

William D. Mahon, president of the Street Carmen's International Union and vice president of the American Federation of Labor, accompanied by other union officers, came to St. Louis today to confer with officers of the local carmen's union on the wage controversy they are having with the Public Service Co.

In the party with Mahon are William B. Fitzgerald, vice president of the Carmen's International Union, who conducted the successful organization strike of the St. Louis carmen in 1919; L. D. Bland, international treasurer of the union and editor of the Union Leader of Chicago; William Quinlan, president of Chicago Local Union No. 241, and William Taver, secretary of the Chicago local.

These leaders first conferred with William B. McMorrow, international representative of the union, who is advising the local men in their wage negotiations. McMorrow outlined to them the progress of the wage negotiations up to date and they approved the steps he had taken.

The local carmen in March asked for an increase in wages of members of the union that would amount to $11.60 a month for each man. The company countered with a proposal to cut wages approximately 9 per cent. This was rejected by the men in mass meeting, whereupon the company officers announced they would seek authority from the board of directors to cancel the union contract and enforce the wage reduction. This will be resisted by the union, McMorrow says.

Skull Fractured in Fall.

William Cochran, 52 years old, was taken to City Hospital yesterday suffering from skull injury and fracture of his right arm, suffered, he said, when he fell down steps at his home, 2000 Locust street, the evening before. He said he had gone to bed after he fell, unaware he had been so seriously injured.

FERGUSON ON STAND IN HIS OWN DEFENSE

Tells of Rise From Farm Boy and Collapse of Carleton Concern.

Taking the witness stand in his own defense, Forrest Ferguson, president of the defunct Ferguson-McKinney Manufacturing Co., today told a jury in United States District Judge Davis' court the story of his rise from a beginner as a Tennessee farm boy to a position of prominence in the dry goods business and of his fall when his concern and affiliated companies failed two years ago with a loss of $3,000,000.

Ferguson and Alfred Baggott, treasurer of the concern and his co-defendant, pleaded in a previous trial, at which the jury failed to agree, that the shady financial dealings of their concern and the other Murray Carleton interests were actuated by Carleton and that they worked only at his direction.

Carleton died after the crash of his business but Ferguson and Baggott were indicted on a charge of using the mails to defraud, the charges being based upon the transmission of false financial statements to Eastern bankers to back up applications for loans.

As at the first trial, Ferguson traced his business development from the time he worked in a country general store at Dyersburg, Tenn., as a lad of 15, through stages as store clerk at Paducah, Ky., and St. Louis, to his organization of the Ferguson-McKinney Dry Goods Co.

In all his career, he said, Carleton was his intimate friend and adviser. Once, he related, Carleton, almost off-handedly, lent him $100,000 to buy out disgruntled stockholders, and arranged for loans of $150,000 more.

This $250,000 Ferguson had borrowed back from his own company to repay the lenders, and had hypothecated his stock in security for the loan. The stock was still in the company's safe when it collapsed. The loan had never been repaid.

Ferguson was on the stand more than two hours. He was followed by eight witnesses who testified that the character of both Ferguson and Baggott was "good." Court was recessed until Monday.

50-YEAR CHARTER ASKED OF CITY BY ILLINOIS TRACTION

Contemplates $5,000,000 Improvements, Including Subway and Elevated Tracks to Bridge.

NEW PASSENGER AND FREIGHT TERMINALS

Proposed Franchise Ordinance Provides That City May Later Acquire These Properties.

Expenditure of about $5,000,000 is contemplated by the Illinois Traction System, which is controlled by the Insull-Studebaker interests, to consummate a plan for a new underground passenger and freight terminal here, subway connections therewith, an elevated line between McKinley Bridge and Palm street, and a new freight yard on the wharf between McKinley Bridge and Chambers street.

A proposed franchise ordinance to make this possible was introduced for the company in the Board of Aldermen yesterday. The franchise would have a life of 50 years.

A statement by the company said a freight and express terminal eight to 12 stories high would be erected on the city block facing High streets between Morgan street and Lucas avenue, and indicated the adjoining Carleton Building, on Twelfth street, between Lucas and Washington avenues, might be used as a passenger station.

Provision for Sale to City.

The Post-Dispatch a year ago disclosed that the Illinois Traction was planning to enlarge its facilities here. The proposed franchise provides that the city may acquire the system involved therein upon payment in cash of the company's investment, at the end of 10 years after operation begins under the ordinance, or at the end of each five-year period thereafter, provided a year's notice is given.

The underground terminal would be bounded by the west line of High street, continued to Washington avenue; the north line of Washington avenue, the east line of Eleventh street and the north line of O'Fallon street, with connecting subway tracks under Gay, Morgan and Linden streets and Lucas avenue, between High and Fourteenth streets.

The main double-track subway line would run north under High street and private property at the north end to Cass avenue, a short distance west of Twelfth street, so that a connection would be made with the existing surface tracks in Twelfth street either just north or just south of Cass avenue. While there would be a grade crossing at Cass avenue, at any time required by the city after 10 years the company would elevate the line or depress the thoroughfare there.

Maintenance of surface tracks in Twelfth street would be continued under the franchise, between Franklin avenue and Palm street. The main elevated structure would run from Palm street to the bridge head at Ninth and Salisbury streets, following virtually the same route as the existing surface line.

City Railways Connection.

Begining at a connection with this elevated route near Ninth and Dock streets, the branch elevated would follow Dock street east to the wharf, where it would turn south, reaching grade between Palm and Montgomery streets, where it would connect with city-owned railways. As far as possible, all overhead structures would have a 15½-foot clearance for vehicles.

The terminal yard would occupy wharf space to be bought or leased from the city, between Chambers street and the McKinley Bridge and between the river and the Burlington Railroad. Steam power or electric would be permitted for locomotives operating between the bridge and this yard over the elevated, but elsewhere steam would be barred, although gasoline or oil would be allowed.

Permission was granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for operation as a single unit of Illinois Traction, the St. Louis Electric Terminal Railway, the St. Louis, Troy & Eastern Railroad and the St. Louis & Illinois Belt Railway, all owned by the same interests and joining here. The Troy & Eastern has a new steam approach to McKinley Bridge.

Temporary Surface Hauls.

Pending construction of the underground terminal and the subway the company would be given authority to haul freight over its surface line in the city. The company would agree to make necessary changes in sewer and plants of other utilities to make room for the subway. All of the proposed work would have to be approved by the Board of Public Service.

Within 60 days after approval of the ordinance, the company would have to file its written acceptance with the city and post a $50,000 bond that it would observe provi-

Permission was granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday for operation as a single unit of Illinois Traction, the St. Louis Electric Terminal Railway, the St. Louis, Troy & Eastern Railroad and the St. Louis & Illinois Belt Railway, all owned by the same interests and joining here. The Troy & Eastern has a new steam approach to McKinley Bridge.

Temporary Surface Hauls.

Pending construction of the underground terminal and the subway the company would be given authority to haul freight over its surface line in the city. The company would agree to make necessary changes in sewer and plants of other utilities to make room for the subway. All of the proposed work would have to be approved by the Board of Public Service.

Within 60 days after approval of the ordinance, the company would have to file its written acceptance with the city and post a $50,000 bond that it would observe provisions of the ordinance and indemnify the city against claims. Within six months after such acceptance the work south of Franklin avenue would have to be started, and it would have to be completed within three years after acceptance. Five years would be allowed for construction of the subway and seven years for the elevated, while the wharf terminal could be established whenever required by the company's business.

Advantages Pointed Out.

The franchise would be in the name of the St. Louis Electric Terminal Railway. Advantages claimed for the plan, in a statement by D. W. Snyder Jr., vice president and operating executive of that corporation, are: It will meet the demands of business here for faster handling of shipments, especially in less than carload lots, and extension of the trade territory; it will facilitate development of the section between Washington and Cass avenues for commercial uses and factories; it will fit in with the city's major street plan, particularly with the extension of Twelfth boulevard northward. Street congestion and other physical restrictions have prevented expansion previously, Snyder said.

No arrangements have been made for financing the proposal, Snyder declared. He explained that the Carleton Building, if used, would be leased, and surplus space there sublet. James A. Hooke, former Director of Public Utilities, is consulting engineer for the company.

SEEKS DEATH FOR FIVE YOUTHS, 15 TO 22 YEARS OLD

Chicago Prosecutor Calls to Stand Boy, 6, Who Identifies One as Father's Slayer.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 28.—A 6-year-old boy yesterday pointed out "the man who killed my daddy," in a crowded courtroom where five youths, mostly boys in their teens, were on trial, charged with murder.

After qualifying as a witness by telling the court, "God will kill me if I lie," the boy, Edward Szczepanski, pointed at the eldest of the five, Michael Cios, 22. The State demanded the death penalty for Cios and the four others, the youngest being 15 years old, for the slaying of Joseph Szczepanski, 31, a grocer, during a holdup.

MRS. MARY A. DENTON BURIED

Widow of Insurance Agent Dies of Infirmities of Age.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary A. Denton, who died at her home Wednesday from the infirmities of age, was held this morning. Services were conducted at the residence, 5404 Maple avenue, by the Rev. Abel White, rector of St. Philips' Episcopal Church, and burial was in Bellefontaine Cemetery. Mrs. Denton was 76 years old.

She was born in England and came to this country as a girl. Immediately after the Civil War she was married to Ansel B. Denton, who had been a Captain in the Federal Army. They came here several years later, and Mr. Denton served as superintendent of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. here until his death in 1902. Mrs. Denton is survived by her children, Miss Emma Denton and Francis D. Denton.

CROSS-COUNTRY DERBY CONTINUES EASTWARD

Runners Leave East St. Louis at 7:16 A. M. for Staunton, 41 Miles Away.

Pyle's pilgrimage to New York, notoriety, numerous sore feet and a few substantial money prizes, limped out of East St. Louis at 7:16 a. m. today, 2086 miles to the good and only 1300 more to go.

About 300 persons gathered in front of the Ainad Temple to cheer the departure of the 72 bronzed, bearded and wire-drawn "runners" remaining in the race, which began March 4 at Los Angeles and may finish June 2 in New York. Whether the spectators cheered for that, the runners' departure meant also the departure of some hundreds of dimes and quarters, fed last night to the carnival which accompanies and partly supports the corn and bunion marathon.

41 Miles on Today's Program.

"The Piu-poison Girl," "Mystifying Magician," "Oklahoma Outlaw" (embalmed), "Wo-kah, the Wonder Dog," and "The Wonders of Hollywood" held forth in Ainad Temple, and attracted several hundred of the curious at 10 cents or a quarter a head.

C. C. Pyle, former proprietor of a motion-picture show in Champaign, Ill., capitalizer of Red Grange and proud papa of the quaint idea of a 3400-mile foot race for $48,000 in prizes, departed with Grange in their motor palace coach to look over the layout at Springfield and Chicago. The "runners" are trotting or limping 41 miles to Staunton today, 43 miles to Virden tomorrow, and 30 miles to Springfield Monday.

Pass Through St. Louis.

They passed through St. Louis yesterday, causing no great stir away from their route. They passed up the business district because downtown merchants failed to "ante." A report that East St. Louis business men put up $1500 was denied.

"Ed" Gardner, Negro schoolboy of Seattle, Wash., was the first to arrive at Ainad Temple. He ran the 28.5 miles from Hillside View, a Manchester road hotel, in 3 hours 29 minutes and 23 seconds, but still was in fifth position for the first 2086.2 miles of the 3400.

Gavuzzi Maintains Lead.

The leader is Peter Gavuzzi, 24, steward on the liner Majestic, who entered from Southampton, England. Gavuzzi's total running time is 345 hours and 35 seconds. Second is Andrew Payne, 20-year-old farmboy of Claremore, Ok., with a total time of 349 hours, 50 minutes and 10 seconds. Payne and Gavuzzi came in together yesterday, tied for twentieth place for the day's stint.

Payne, a gangling youth with a long stride that keeps his feet near the ground, led the race from McLean, Tex., to Rolla. Between Rolla and St. Louis one runner gave up and quit, and Payne was passed by Gavuzzi, who runs with a short, brisk stride, trains on cigarettes and misses English ale.

EXPOSER OF D. A. R. 'BLACKLIST' TO BE TRIED BY SOCIETY

Nineteen Officers and Members Sign Charges Against Mrs. Helen Tufts Bailie.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, April 28.—Charges designed to procure the censure, suspension or expulsion of Mrs. Helen Tufts Bailie from the Daughters of the American Revolution because of her opposition of the organization's "black list" in this state have been filed with the national board of management of the organization.

The charges are contained in a petition signed by 19 officers and members including Mrs. Sarah E. Guernsey, honorary President General and Agnes Holton Banks, Vice President General and five state regents. She is charged with "having conducted herself in a way calculated to disturb the harmony and injure the good name of the national society, Daughters of the American Revolution."

Mrs. Bailie first became recognized as a stormy petrel within the organization in February when she headed a delegation of 14 insurgent members of officers of three Boston chapters and submitted a petition to the President General protesting against the organization going on record in favor of the then pending naval construction program. The petition also deplored the action of the organization in denouncing certain individuals and organizations on the grounds that they were unpatriotic. In March, she exposed the presence of the "blacklist" within the organization.

Mrs Bailie said she prepared to to fight the movement to the end."

An executive committee will hear the charges against Mrs. Bailie and make its recommendation to the national board of management, consisting of state regents and national officers. The defendant then will be heard after which the board will make a decision. The defendant has the right of appeal to the full body of the next Continental Congress.

POLICE ASKED TO GIVE PART OF SALARY TO AID PENSION BILL

Gerk Suggests That They Contribute 5 Per Cent of Month's Pay to $60,000 Fund.

A request was sent to the 1600 commissioned members of the police force by Chief Gerk today for voluntary contributions amounting to 5 per cent of each man's salary for a month for the $60,000 fund to be raised among officers and citizens in support of the movement to have a police pension bill enacted into law through the initiative at the November election.

The policemen were asked to pay half of their contributions next Tuesday and the rest on June 1, and the Chief hopes all the men will respond to demonstrate their attitude to the public. Patrolmen are paid $180 a month.

A Citizens' Police Pension Committee will conduct the campaign for the fund and the circulation of initiative petitions, which must be completed by July. The same measure which died in the last Legislature will be submitted. St. Louis policemen have a pension system operated by voluntary assessment now.

CANADIAN LIQUOR SHIPPED TO ST. LOUIS DESTROYED

Dry Agents Pour 5760 Pints of Beer and 636 of Whiskey Into Quarry.

A consignment of liquor, 5760 pints of Canadian beer and 636 pints of Mountain Ledge Canadian whisky, packed in 28 shipping cases, was seized by Federal prohibition agents on a platform of the Universal Car Loading & Distributing Co., Collins and Biddle streets, at noon today.

The consignment, which was followed here from Detroit by an agent, arrived several days ago. It was shipped by the Federal Truck Co. of Detroit to three St. Louis consignees, all non-existent—the Johnson Printing Co., 1601 St. Louis avenue; the Atlas Sales & Service Co., 2759 South Jefferson avenue, and the St. Louis Motor Sales Co., 1801 Pine street.

Since its arrival, agents had kept a close watch for claimants, but when none had appeared today the liquor was seized under a search warrant and destroyed by order of the court. The liquor was poured into a sewer at Union boulevard and St. Louis avenue.

BOY SERIOUSLY HURT TRYING TO STOP RUNAWAY HORSE

Walter Zachies' Skull Fractured When Wagon Passes Over Him.

Trying to stop a runaway horse, Walter Zachies, 13 years old, was injured severely yesterday when the horse knocked him down and the wagon ran over him. His skull was fractured and his body lacerated.

The horse, hitched to a delivery wagon of the Athletic Tea & Coffee Co., had been left standing at the curb by the driver, Walter D. Casey, near the boy's home, 5137 Cologne avenue.

A piece of paper blown by a breeze caused the horse to become frightened, police were told. As the horse began running away, the lad darted out in an effort to stop it. He was taken to city hospital.

MEN WEAR WOMEN'S CLOTHES AT CHURCH FASHION SHOW

Entertainment Is Held in New Educational Building of St. John's Methodist Congregation.

Dressed in the latest of women's fashions, bankers, doctors and business men promenaded as feminine models at a benefit fashion show sponsored by the mothercraft class of St. John's Methodist Church, Kingshighway and Washington boulevards, last night.

The show was held in the auditorium of the church's new educational building. It started with a parade of models wearing negligees and kimonos. Eight coy and kittenish masculine models made up the procession. Then they appeared in various other guises, all extravagantly feminine.

Carl Walker, vice president of the Federal Commerce Trust Co., modeled a baby blue evening gown. E. T. Tobey, another vice president of the same institution, impersonated Martha Washington. A. Shapleigh Boyd of the Shapleigh Hardware Co., was a flapper with a flaming red dress. J. F. (Bud) Hartnett, Washington University football star, tripped about as a ballet dancer in a flimsy pink outfit, and William Snyder, a bond salesman, appeared as a stylish infant.

ABE SLUPSKY WON'T LEND ANY MORE, SO SON IS BANKRUPT

President of Electrical Firm Testifies Creditors Forced Company's Failure.

Pressure brought by creditors, who were also his competitors, contributed to the failure of the Belt Electrical Supply Co., 643 Delmonte Way, Morris Slupsky, president of the concern, testified before Referee in Bankruptcy Coles yesterday.

The pressure was brought to bear after his father, "Col. Abe" Slupsky, declined to lend him any more money, the son said. Slupsky said he started the company, which did both a retail and jobbing business, as a corporation, but later bought out the other stockholders and operated it as a personal enterprise. Seventy creditors hold claims for $49,000. A trustee's sale and collection of outstanding accounts netted $6000 and an investigation is being made of Slupsky's equity in a $27,000 home he occupies in St. Louis County. Slupsky claims homestead rights in the property, which is mortgaged.

ATTORNEYS DISCUSS FALL TRIAL WITH PRESIDENT

Pomerene and Roberts Say Their Action Will Depend on Ex-Secretary's Health.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene, special Government counsel in the criminal trials growing out of the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve lease, called upon President Coolidge today to report on the latest phases of the cases. Just a week ago Harry F. Sinclair was acquitted by a jury of having conspired with Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, to defraud the Government in the lease.

After the conference the attorneys said no decision had been reached as to whether the conspiracy charges against Fall would be pressed. They added that they were satisfied that Fall's physical condition would not permit him to be placed on trial at this time. They said they would await developments in Fall's condition before deciding whether to proceed.

EXPLODING OIL BURNER ROUTS 70 GUESTS AT LIBERTY HOTEL

Explosion, Third in 7 Months, Does Damage Estimated at $300.

An oil burner in a furnace at the Liberty Hotel, 722 North Twentieth street, exploded last night, frightening more than 70 guests and causing them to leave their rooms. Damage was estimated at $300.

E. C. Rassmussen, proprietor of the hotel, said the explosion was the third that has been experienced since the oil burner was installed about eight months ago. The two previous explosions were not as severe as the third which aroused people living nearby and broke a number of windows in the hotel.

An agent in charge of distribution of oil burners such as that used at the hotel, said tests made of the oil used at the hotel showed it was of low combustion type. Such oil, he said, might vaporize within the furnace without burning until there was sufficient pressure to force the fumes in contact with the continuous flame on the burner, causing ignition of the compressed fumes. The oil being used had been delivered yesterday, the agent said he was informed.

GERMANY SUBMITS REPLY TO KELLOGG PEACE PLAN

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, April 28.—Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the Foreign Minister, handed Jacob Gould Schurman, the American Ambassador, last night the German reply to Secretary Kellogg's anti-war proposal.

The German reply also was brought to the notice of the Ambassadors of the other Powers to whom the American proposal was submitted.

Neither the Foreign Office nor the American Embassy will divulge the contents of the German note, which, it is learned, will be published simultaneously on Tuesday next in the interested capitals.

Engineer Crushed Under Engine.

Earl Chandler, a hoisting engineer of Pacific, Mo., died at St. Luke's Hospital yesterday of injuries suffered Thursday when a hoisting engine on which he was working at Pacific toppled over with him. Steam escaping from the engine's boiler scalded him. He is survived by his wife, Eleanor, who lives in Pacific.

INQUIRY INTO SHOOTING OF MAN IN APARTMENT

A. Van Bergen Says He Wounded Himself Accidentally.

Anthony van Bergen, 33 years old, president and treasurer of the A. Van Bergen Armature Service Co., was shot and gravely wounded at his apartment, 4222A West Pine boulevard, last night, under circumstances which police are investigating.

Both the wounded man and his wife, Betty, 30, said he accidentally shot himself. He was wounded in the right side, the bullet passing through a silver cigarette case in his vest pocket. The bullet was removed in an operation early today at Barnes Hospital.

Van Bergen told police he was shot at 11 o'clock while unpacking a grip which he carried on a recent out-of-town trip. He said he removed his revolver from the grip and carelessly tossed it on a kitchen table, the revolver being accidentally discharged and the bullet striking him.

Mrs. Van Bergen said she was washing her hair when he called to her for a handkerchief. She told him there was one in the bag he was unpacking. A moment later, she heard a crash and found him on the kitchen floor, wounded. She ran across the second-floor hall to an apartment occupied by Ernest Scott and his aunt, Miss Grace Holzman. A private ambulance was summoned and all four went to the hospital.

The revolver and the bullet-punctured cigarette case were found under a pillow in Scott's room. Scott explained Mrs. Van Bergen had asked him to "get rid" of both.

The revolver was empty. Five cartridges and three discharged shells were found in a chifforobe drawer in the Van Bergen apartment. Mrs. Van Bergen said she had no recollection of how Scott got the revolver and cigarette case. She could not account for the three discharged cartridges.

At the hospital Van Bergen said that he had unloaded the revolver after being shot. He declared there were two empty shells in it before the reported accidental discharge of the weapon. He insisted the shooting was an accident.

Mrs. Van Bergen, Scott and his aunt were not held. Mrs. Van Bergen is cashier in a department store.

MEXICO'S POLICY ON CHURCH RAKED BY VATICAN ORGAN

Calles' Action Called "New Pagan Fury Against God's Mysteries" in Osservatore Romano.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, April 28.—The "non-intervention policy" with respect to the exercise of religious beliefs in Mexico is denounced by the Osservatore Romano, official Vatican organ, in its leading article today. After describing the action of President Calles as "a new pagan fury against God's mysteries," the paper intimates that the argument used for "non-intervention" is that it is a question of the internal affairs of a nation, and therefore no other country's business.

"But," it adds, "thank God this iniquitous attitude, this inhuman uncivilized conspiracy of silence, against which the father of the faithful, the pontiff of Roman Christendom has uttered lofty and powerful words, is beginning to be broken."

Boy and Sister Abandoned.

Mrs. Rose Sherrill, proprietor of a rooming house at 1223 Jones street, yesterday asked police to take charge of two children, a boy, 6 years old, and a girl, 8 years old, who she said had been left with her by their parents a week ago. A telegram from the parents, saying they had been arrested in Belleville for the theft of an automobile, was received by Mrs. Sherrill the day after the parents' departure, police were told.

and shot by someone he did not know.

Joseph Marovich, night watchman at a roadhouse being constructed on the Collinsville road to compete with Villa Iris, was beaten and shot to death, and the roadhouse was bombed April 15.

Weller was arrested for investigation last August after Bennie Giamanco, gangster, and Aloys Beelman, bystander, had been shot and killed at Sixth and Chestnut streets. A witness reported the assassins escaped in an automobile which bore a license number, issued to a relative of Weller. No prosecution resulted.

Weller and Mandel took charge of Villa Iris after the previous manager, George Halstead, had been sent to jail for violating the Volstead act. Part of the roadhouse was padlocked, but Weller and Mandel continued to sell drinks in the other part of the place. A lookout was regularly posted on a side porch to admit habitues and keep out prohibition agents and police. It was on this porch that Weller's body was found.

THE REV. M. G. KYLE TELLS OF EXCAVATIONS IN GALILEE

President of Xenia Seminary Exploring Buried Cities Along River Jordan.

The Rev. Dr. M. G. Kyle, president of Xenia Seminary, engaged in excavation work in the buried cities of the Canaanites in Palestine, described his investigations at Tabigha, on the Lake of Galilee, in a letter received by St. Louis friends yesterday.

"This city has never been excavated, and few people even know of its existence," wrote Dr. Kyle. "It was once a large and important place, which was later the Soythopolis of the Greeks and Romans. It stood just where the River Jordan leaves the Lake of Galilee. I found fragments of pottery of the early bronze age, perhaps before 3000 B. C. down to the Israelite and Roman times.

"The prehistoric caves of Galilee have been making quite a stir in the study of the history of the race. I visited them. They are very old, indeed, going back through all the ages of civilization to the Stone Age. Because one skull was found and it happened to be deficient in size and shape, the conclusion was drawn that here is 'the missing link' between man and monkey or some mefiber of the simian family.

"For one may see now and then deficient skulls walking about our streets, and any cemetery will yield an occasional one. Does that convict us all of immediate kinship with simians? When they find a whole cemetery of such skulls, we may be ready to listen, but one deficient skull in the ruins does not prove a race of missing links."

$250,000 FOUND IN SAFE OF HERMIT

$20,000 of Sum in Cash, Remainder in Stocks and Bonds.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—A fortune estimated by police at $250,000 was found yesterday in an old iron safe buried under rubbish in the cellar of the home of an aged recluse who died a week ago. There was $20,000 in cash and stocks and bonds with an estimated value of $200,000.

Paul Schelley, 79, who long had lived alone in a house on North Waterloo street, was the possessor of the fortune. He had lived there since the death of his wife, 25 years ago.

He was last seen alive April 1. A week ago police, summoned by neighbors, entered his home and found him dead in a chair.

TOM MIX TELLS HOW HE FIXES TARGET FOR STAGE SHOOTING

Gives Deposition in Damage Suit of Woman Who Says She Was Injured.

As a marksman, Tom Mix isn't so good as he looks, the two-gun movie hero admitted yesterday when his deposition was taken in a $25,000 damage suit filed against him by Mrs. Fern Webb, 5357 Paton avenue.

The targets he shattered at each performance at the St. Louis Theater this week are specially made, he said, so as to take some of the burden of accuracy off the marksman. Mrs. Webb, as is known, alleges she suffered injury to her right eye from a bullet fragment during Mix's performance Monday night.

The target, Mix explained, consists of a steel background, on which are fixed a number of targets made of plaster and resin, which crumble easily when hit. The device is placed at exactly the same spot each time and a mark on the floor shows Mix where to stand in order to get the best score.

Lead bullets flatten out against the steel background, he said, and do no damage. He declared tests made before offering the act convinced him there was no danger of fragments injuring a spectator.

SUIT TO COLLECT INSURANCE

Widow of Henry Schenkel Contends Death Was Accidental.

Suit to force payment of a $15,000 accident policy carried by Henry Schengel, former sales manager of William Walkke & Co., soap manufacturers, was filed in Circuit Court yesterday by his widow, Mrs. Emma Schenkel, 2022 Harris avenue.

She alleges that her husband lost his life Jan. 21, last, by an accidental gunshot wound, although a Coroner's jury held the wound was self-inflicted during a temporary mental aberration. The suit is against the Travelers Insurance Co.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles; that it will always fight for progress or reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Soldiers of Peace.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IT is surprising to find anyone at this day and age opposing police pensions for the reasons cited by "Reader" in your issue of April 26. The policeman's work is of a public nature. He protects the lives and property of our citizens. It is extra-hazardous work, consequently he can not obtain life or accident insurance except at prohibitive rates. He is paid barely enough to support himself and his family so can not hope to save anything for old age or to leave his dependents when he dies. The policeman is, in fact, a soldier of peace and it is nothing more than right that the city, which he serves faithfully, should provide a modest pension when he is incapacitated by age or injuries received in the line of duty, and for his widow and orphans when he is gone. The fact that practically every large city in the United States except St. Louis has a police pension system is further proof that it is right. JUSTICE.

How to Revive Jaded Literary Appetites.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

CANTAB states that he reads Jane Austein with Gusto, and C. B. J. claims that he read Rabelais with Gusto, so what I'm wondering about is: who is this fellow Gusto?

To answer Cantab's question about Trader Horn, I refer him to the article in Sunday's magazine section (April 21, 1928) of the Post-Dispatch on the Trader. Perhaps that will help him. If they will go to the Public Library and select one of the "one hundred books that everyone should read," finish it and continue to do so until they finish the list, their jaded appetites should be restored to normalcy. It will cost them but a little time, and it will be time well spent. Selah! SIJIJI.

Complains of Police Brutality.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

ON the night of April 22 I was waiting one block west of the Maplewood loop on the Manchester street car line when a police car passed by; and after a moment returned to the spot where I was standing. Two uniformed policemen stopped me and asked who I was and where I was from, which questions I answered in a proper way, telling them I was on my way home after escorting my girl acquaintance to her home in Maplewood. They asked for her name, which I refused to give in order to avoid getting her into any inconvenience. Thereupon I was arrested and taken to the Maplewood police station, where the inquiry started all over again, and where I answered all questions, including the one I had refused to answer at first. Hardly was this over when one of the policemen started insulting me and slapped me in the face, against which procedure I protested. His companion then joined him in this mistreatment and punched me in the face, causing my nose to bleed. They continued ridiculing my accent (for I am of German birth), and abusing me; I still bear marks of their brutality. After more than an hour's torture, I was released.

In the name of justice I want to expose these uncivilized, brutal police of this station. HANS WEYL.

Daylight Saving.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

IN MANY parts of the country daylight saving will begin today. It will continue in most of these places until Sept. 30. The chief objection to the plan is that there is no Federal law in regard to it. A certain municipality may adopt the idea, while a neighbor in the same State may reject it. This brings about much annoyance and confusion.

Congress passed a daylight saving law in 1918, but after the war repealed it. Since then it has taken no action on the subject. In 1926 the Federal Supreme Court rendered a decision that a municipality has the authority to decide upon this matter. Perhaps the best solution of the question would be to have the entire nation either adopt or reject it. At present, St. Louis keeps standard time. M. S. MACK.

Bonehead Philosophy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHEN you're all right you'll find most everybody else all right.

The greatest art is naturalness.

What law can prevent thirst, desire and natural inclinations?

The person who agrees with you in all questions only pities you or is your enemy.

The back-slapper wants to use you for something.

When a person can find no good in other people his mind is either rotten or dead.

You can live in a garden of beautiful flowers and only see dirt—that is, if you only look down.

A knocker uses his poisoned smoke screen as a mask.

What good is all the fame in the world if you have dyspepsia and a headache—or lose your head?

If we were civilized we'd quit passing nutty laws.

Wonderful personalities create beautiful people.

The wisest man is the biggest fool when intoxicated. BERTON BELLIS.

STREET RAILWAYS AND THE FUTURE.

If the Board of Aldermen is not already sufficiently warned against tying the city up with the street railway system, there is abundant warning in the statement just made by the company in a wage dispute with its employes.

In 1923, when the company made its present contract with the workers, the street cars of St. Louis carried 292,671,000 passengers. In 1927 they carried 258,805,000 passengers. In the brief period of four years, notwithstanding the city was steadily growing and is given by the census estimate for 1927 a population of 839,200 against 772,897 in 1920, traffic on the street cars fell off 11.3 per cent. Revenue declined in the period $1,640,000.

On the same day that this statement was issued by the company Edwin S. Austin, one of the supervisors of the State Public Service Commission, told the Missouri Association of Public Utilities, in session at Jefferson City, how general this decline has become everywhere. He said that from 1915 to 1927 street car service was totally abandoned in the United States by 253 companies and partially abandoned by 511 more. In 1926 alone 765 miles of street car tracks were abandoned, while 16 operating companies, with a total capitalization of $135,000,000, went into receiverships.

Mr. Austin says the bus and the automobile have become a serious menace to the passenger traffic of all rail carriers, and he predicts that their invasion of this field will increase as automotive manufacture improves and pavements in and out of the cities become more general. The steam railroads have lost $300,000,000 in passenger fares to the bus and the automobile since 1920.

The local company admits in its statement that the future is far from promising. It is, indeed. For the city to extend the franchise of the street railway system for 30 years, as the reorganizers of the property have been and still are urging, would be madness. The city cannot save the street railways. Another and quicker method of transportation has come, as Mr. Austin says, like an eruption. The local company has a franchise which will continue for approximately 12 years. If transportation changes as rapidly in that period as it has changed in the last eight years, the street railway system of St. Louis will by that time have become an anachronism.

Certainly the growing city of St. Louis does not want to tie itself up with the past in any such fashion as that. Upon the contrary, what it should do is to ally itself with rapid transit and the future.

STEWART, THE BLUE-EYED CHERUB.

That blue-eyed cherub, Robert W. Stewart, now stands revealed as the fourth partner in the notorious Continental Trading Co. deal. Only three months ago he was telling the Senate committee:

> I have never had anything to do with the disposition of the bonds, never owned any of the bonds and had no connection with the bonds.

Stewart was then—Feb. 2—considered a much-maligned man. Telegrams of commiseration and sympathy came to him from all parts of the country and brave men wept as they contemplated his persecution by the wicked Senators. But the gem of the occasion was carved by a correspondent of the Chicago Tribune. When Stewart took the stand he was thus described by the enraptured writer. Stewart > settled himself in the witness chair, smoothed his gray hair, neatly parted on one side, adjusted his horn-rimmed glasses and surveyed the Senators from a pair of blue eyes that mirrored the clear conscience of a man at peace with his soul.

That, without doubt, is the funniest prose poem of 1928.

SHAKSPEARE IN CHICAGO.

Gene Tunney talked about Shakspeare to Prof. William Lyon Phelps' class at Yale on Monday. The champion pugilist, in true empirical vein, wondered whether the bard of Avon, if living today, would be a boxing fan and, had he been at the Chicago battle, would he have been pulling for Tunney in that memorable seventh round.

Mr. Tunney, though disavowing scholarship, is as competent to answer that question as the most profound Shakspearean student. Shakspeare the man is the enigma of the ages. Of one thing, though, we may be reasonably certain: he would never have paid $45 for a ring-side seat a mile and a half away. Unlike the proverbial poet, the greatest of the poets was a canny person. In a day of the wildest prodigality he hoarded his pence, shillings and pounds, accumulated his pile, went back to Stratford to live like a country squire and died before he had fairly got accustomed to his grandeur. The rest is mystery.

Singularly enough, no such mystery envelops Shakspeare's gay and festive contemporaries. There can be no question in the mind of Mr. Tunney as to whether "O, Rare Ben Johnson" would be a boxing fan, or as to where that original first-nighter would have been on the occasion of the Chicago affair. He would have been in the first row—necessarily on a pass—and, in that seventh round, when the tenth second had elapsed with Tunney on the floor, the referee would have awarded the victory to Dempsey, or he would have been a dead referee.

The Aldermen will do well to pass the ordinance against radio nuisance, and thus rid Olive street of the cheap carnival atmosphere that blatant loud speakers have given it.

THE KNIFE AND THE SALAD.

The age may be mechanistic, the gleaming glare of the dollar may be the beacon at the end of the road, but civilization, culture, gentility advance, i. e., the good news arrives that "authorities on etiquette," whoever they may be, now countenance the long maligned knife as a dinner partner in eating a salad.

We always have held that this reform would come about sooner or later, we always have believed that the overwhelming weight of public opinion would make this demand and, so demanding, win its victory. That the knife and fork, so long united, should be divorced in the salad eating process was sad enough, but even that separation was secondary to the turmoil set up in the breast of the salad eater, who, no matter how dainty and deft he might be, was ever in fear and trembling lest he send his lettuce sprawling into the lap of the lady next to him. Any salad fancier who did not feel that dread had no conscience and certainly wasn't a gentleman.

The knife has come back to the salad, proudly it takes its place upon the white table top, as proudly as a basely maligned patriot returns from an undeserved exile. And with it returns that premier boon of mankind, peace of mind.

FORISTEL'S ADVICE TO KOELN.

If Ed Koeln, in his conduct of the office of City Collector, should follow the advice of his lieutenant, Ed Foristel, he would be rolling in wealth; likewise, Missouri might be furnished with a parallel to the Len Small case in Illinois. Koeln's salary is limited to $10,000 a year by the State Constitution, but to this he has been adding $10,000 a year more as fees for collection of State income taxes. Although $20,000 a year is twice as much as the law stipulates shall be paid him, Foristel has advised Koeln to add approximately $10,000 more. Here are Foristel's words:

> If Mr. Koeln had taken all the money I told him he could take out of that office he would have taken more than that.
>
> Mr. Koeln has an interest on his daily balance which he is not required to turn in to the State. However, he does, and he's the only Collector in Missouri who does. That amounts to over $10,000 a year, so Mr. Koeln's salary could really be $30,000 instead of $20,000 a year if he wanted to take the money.

It may be true there is no express provision in the law requiring Koeln to turn in to the State the interest on what Foristel refers to as his (Koeln's) daily balance. That daily balance, however, is the State's money and the interest on it is also the State's money. If Mr. Koeln has a right to the interest on the State's money, then by the same process of reasoning he has a right to the principal. While Len Small was State Treasurer of Illinois the law required him to turn over 2 per cent interest on State money in his possession. Small did turn over this 2 per cent, but privately he lent the State's money at higher rates of interest and pocketed the difference. We all remember what the Supreme Court of Illinois said about that and the restitution Small was forced to make. This case, if not exactly parallel, is illustrative.

An instance of closer application is the action of George W. Strodtman when he was appointed Sheriff in July, 1923. The law specified that Strodtman's salary should be $10,000 a year, to be paid out of the fees collected by his office. Strodtman discovered to his amazement that his predecessors had been pocketing ALL the fees, and he was advised to do likewise. Strodtman took the position that, irrespective of precedent, he had no right to anything over $10,000. Accordingly, by the end of his term in December, 1924, he paid into the city treasury the sum of $22,000. Since then the law has been changed so that the city collects the fees and pays the Sheriff a flat salary of $10,000.

Foristel's curious doctrine that Koeln has a right to take the interest on the State's money would be disastrous if it were applied universally. Suppose Mr. Nolte decided that he, too, had the right to pocket interest on the city's money! Suppose Secretary Mellon should inflate his bank balance with the interest on the Government's money! Mr. Foristel is confessedly a dangerous adviser.

SLATTERY AVENGED.

Odell Slattery, the Negro lad who was killed by gangsters, has been avenged. Slattery was an important witness in the prosecution of the three men who held up the Nicklin tannery. On the eve of his appearance against two of the men, Schneider and Buschman, Slattery was "taken for a ride." It was a cruel and atrocious crime and, if it were done to destroy Slattery's testimony, it was entirely futile. Slattery's previous testimony in the case was used against both of the men and they got life sentences. The words of a dead man, crudely put out of the way, rose to plague these criminals. Moreover, Buschman and several others have been indicted for Slattery's murder.

A BIT THICK.

To put it charitably, Premier Taschereau's criticism of Col. Lindbergh's Canadian flight with serum for Floyd Bennett is ill-humored, undiplomatic and just a bit thick. Premier Taschereau, it will be recalled, declared that Lindbergh's flight from New York to Quebec—a splendid piece of dirty-weather flying, by the way—was "a vulgar and spectacular publicity stunt." He exempts Col. Lindbergh from his criticism.

The facts in the case in no wise bear him out. It was only the decent thing for some American institution, such as the New York World and affiliated newspapers of the Bennett flight project, to dispatch to Quebec a physician to attend to Bennett, who was a national figure. It was not a slight on Canadian doctors and should not have been construed in that light by the Premier.

Similarly, when the specialist, Dr. Alvan L. Barach, voiced the need for serum, and expressed the belief that the best serum could be obtained in New York, it was perfectly proper to send it to Quebec, and send it by the speediest means of transport, the airplane.

Finally, it was logical to select for the carrying job the best pilot the nation could find. That was Lindbergh. It was to his credit that he carried out the mission, fighting his way through snowstorm and fog to reach his objective.

In the light of these conditions, it is difficult to explain Premier Taschereau's ill-timed criticism. Perhaps the explanation lies in his remark: "I wish to make it quite clear that I am not anti-American."

This assertion shows what was on his mind, but whether prompted by anti-American feeling or not, he is evidently so fanatically pro-Canadian that his taste and judgment are warped.

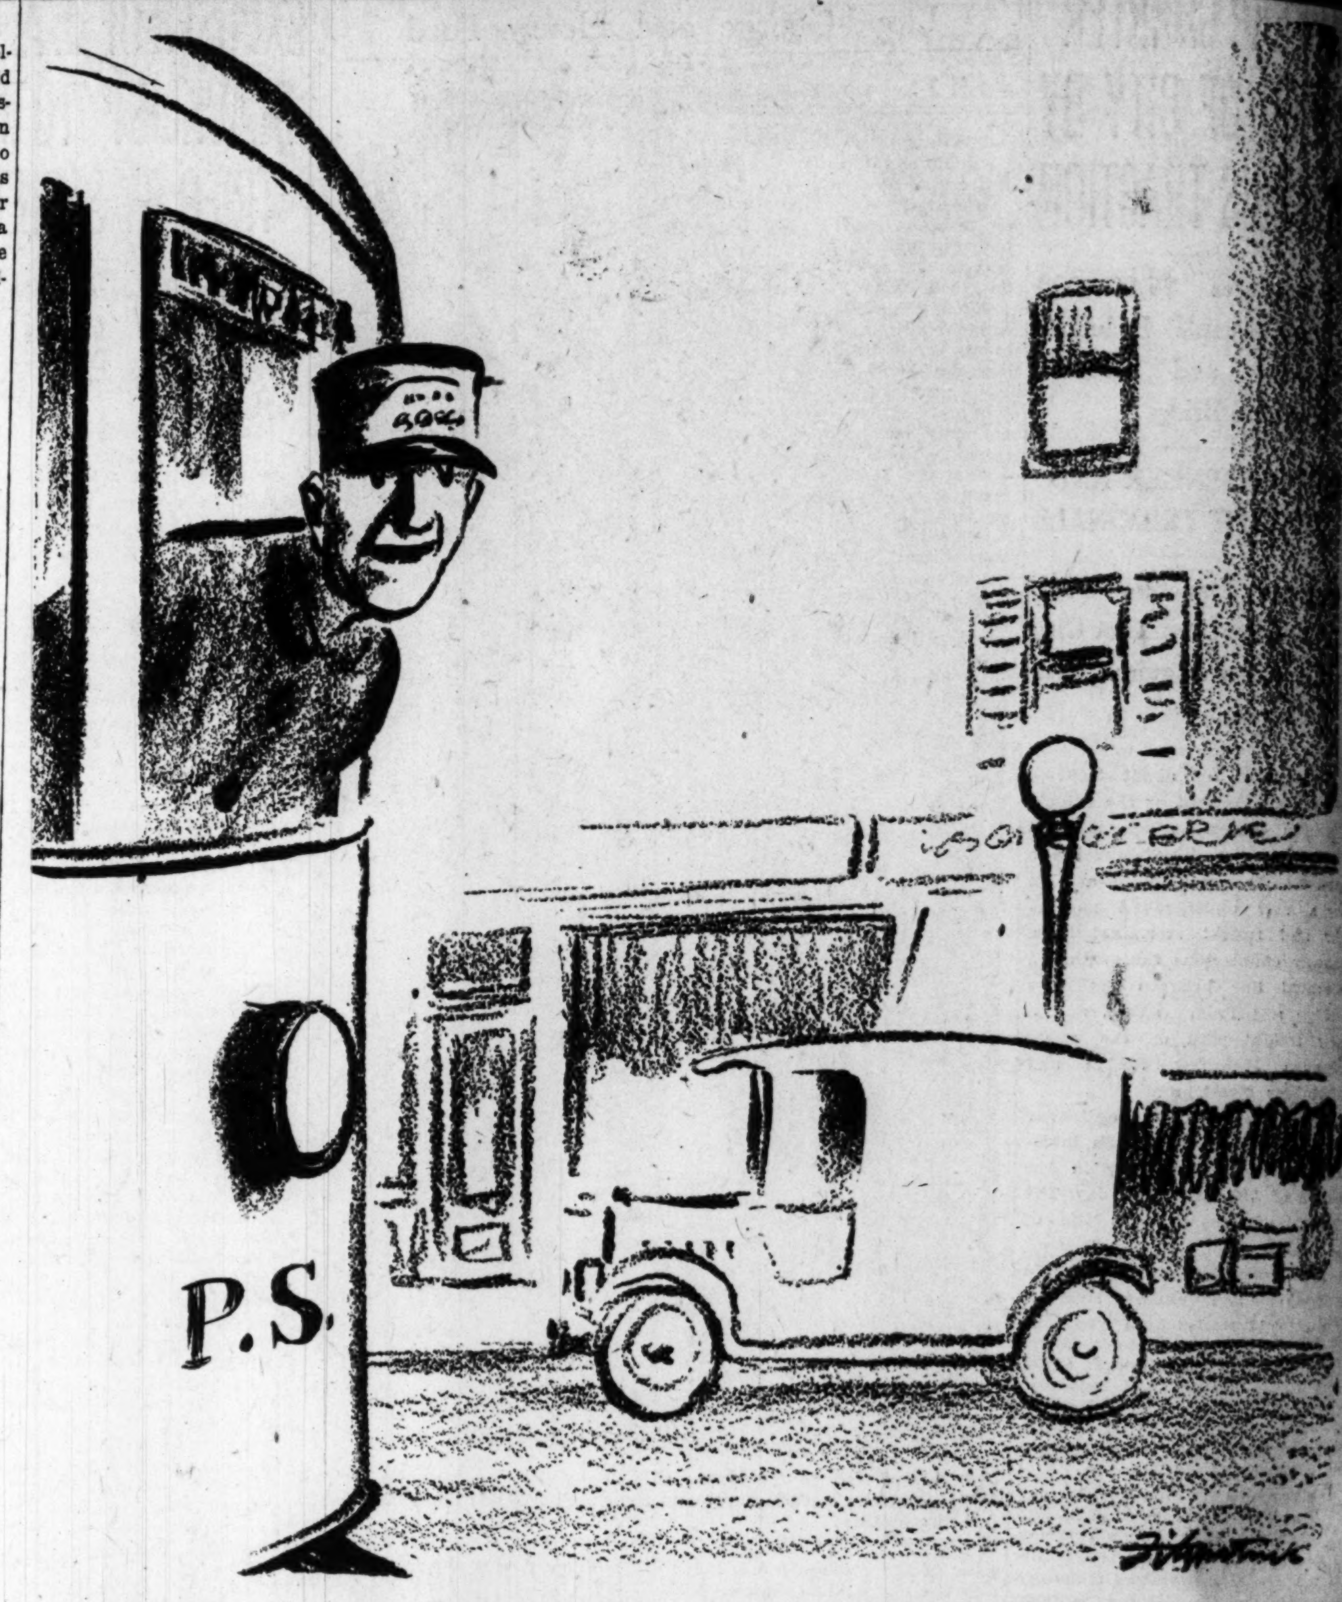

"A WOMAN LOOKS AT HOOVER."

"A woman looks at Hoover" in the current Collier's Weekly. The woman is Kathleen Norris. She admires the Secretary of Commerce extravagantly. She has written, not an appraisal, but a paean. With much of what she says, if phrased moderately, many of us agree. But when Mrs. Norris says "we know what he thinks about some of the more vital questions that are before us just now" her enthusiasm misleads her.

The country has no notion as to what Mr. Hoover thinks about some of the more vital questions before us. On prohibition, under the compulsion of Senator Borah's questionnaire, Mr. Hoover was evasive. Certainly he proposed no enforcement program. Before the flood committee he was more adroit and more disappointing. The rest is silence.

The truth is that Mr. Hoover as a candidate is playing the game. The man who, they said, was not a politician has become a politician. Perhaps that is another evidence of his efficiency. But why should an artist commissioned to do his portrait omit his defects or attempt to endow him with virtues he does not, at present, possess?

In Cromwellian genre, why not paint him as he is, "warts and all?"

Gene Tunney at Yale

Will Harvard Counter by Asking Babe Ruth to Tell the Boys in Cambridge Just What Milton Has Meant to Him?—Would Shakspeare Have Been a Boxing Fan and What Attitude Would He Have Taken Toward the Long Count in Chicago?

HEYWOOD BROUN in The New York World.

GENE TUNNEY did better against Shakspeare than anybody had a right to expect. To be sure, his talk was not particularly informative, but he kept it simple and avoided swank. In the Cathedral Room of Harkness Hall the champion was much less high hatted than is his custom. He did quote Carlyle and paraphrase Spencer, but he fell down in attempting a bit from "Othello." However, quite a large part of his talk was given over to his own personal reactions, and this was just the thing his listeners wanted to hear.

* * *

If pressed, I will grant that very likely I am old-fashioned about such matters. The world has gone beyond the notions of us veteran classical scholars. Gogetters sit in the seats of the mighty. Most of our great universities have gone rotary. Eliot would have frowned, and Patton in his Bermuda retreat may be pardoned a couple of "tuts" when he reads of the brief vaudeville session down at Yale.

Still, aside from injury to a rather nebulous quality called taste, I cannot say that anybody has been much hurt by Tunney's trip. Certainly he has a right to an opinion about Shakspeare as well as any other reader. Only it is not amiss to point out that the undergraduates who flocked to the talk would hardly have had much interest in the observations of the young visitor had he come without his crown. Harvard, I trust, will counter by asking Babe Ruth to tell the boys in Cambridge just what Milton has meant to him.

* * *

In fact, if the line be drawn with any precision, it may well be argued that Gene Tunney qualified as a Shakspearean authority by the margin of just one second. Had he failed to rise before the end of the count in the seventh round, Prof Billy Phelps would hardly have extended his invitation. Nobody cares what contenders or ex-champions think about literature. Possibly the timekeeper who supplied the long count in Chicago may have been conscious of this very factor. Perhaps, as he tolled out the seconds rather more slowly than is the custom, he said to himself, "This I am doing for the Bard of Avon."

In justice to Mr. Tunney it should be pointed out that he himself brought up this particular issue in his little talk to the men of Yale.

"It occurs to me," he said, "whether if Shakspeare were alive today he would be a boxing fan, and would he be rooting for me in Chicago to get up in that seventh round or stay down."

* * *

THIS is an interesting problem, and I hope that Shakespearean scholars will give it due attention. Let us hope that Prof. Kittredge will get around to the point in time and render a final decision. If not, here lies a thesis ready for the hand of any candidate for a Ph. D. desirous of a novel form of research. The difficulty lies in the fact that we know so little about Shakspeare except from internal evidence. My own impression is that he would not commit himself in the seventh round without first looking around to see which way Queen Elizabeth was betting.

In the case of Charles the wrestler, the poet not only let him stay down once he had fallen, but endowed him with a broken neck as well. In this there is little comfort for the under dog. Still, it is not possible to be altogether sure of what Shakspeare would have done in the circumstances unless one knows in what period we assume him to be when he sits at the ringside in judgment. During the days of the great tragedies I think Tunney would have little to hope for from this particular rooter. The man who indulged himself in the double knockout, celebrated in "Romeo and Juliet," would hardly be likely to spend much pity on Gene. Nor can it be said that Shakspeare would have favored him because of his glib erudition. The bard let Mercutio take a long, long count and there was a fellow even more nimble with words than Mr. Tunney.

* * *

Shakspeare's desire, barring a command from the Queen, would have been for the result most suitable for dramatic treatment. A victory for Dempsey would have been a much better news story, but possibly a poorer play. At least, it would not have been a play much in the Shakspearean tradition. As far as I remember, the bard only once indulged himself in any version of "The Man Who Came Back," and few will contend that Antonio stands among his more successful characterizations. Generally speaking, when Shakspeare got a man down he kept him there and often kicked him in the teeth for good measure.

* * *

"SHAKSPEARE was a sport. There is no question about that," declared Gene Tunney. But there is a question. In that matter of the weighing-in, which comes up in the trial scene of "The Merchant of Venice," it can hardly be maintained that Shakspeare gave Shylock anything like a fair deal. Under the rule of our own Boxing Commission, Shylock had every right to claim the forfeit. And should it be said that the dramatist who let Iago get away with a most palpable foul is every inch a sportsman? I don't think so. A very large number of Shakspeare's fighters indulged in dirty work. The playwright who was willing to let a man fence with a poisoned rapier would hardly be squeamish as to the nature of the bandages across a fighter's knuckles.

* * *

In fact, quite incidentally Tunney mentioned one pugilist much more within the Shakspearean tradition than either himself or Dempsey. In somewhat slighting fashion he compared Jack Sharkey to the Ajax of "Troilus and Cressida." Far better he might have pointed out the spiritual kinship between Jack Falstaff and the Boston braggart. With a certain process of fattening and some intensive home work in the matter of sack and mulled wines, I think Sharkey far the best equipped fighter now known to the ring to take the spotlight and roll off the fine old cadences of pride in deeds achieved and confidence in triumphs still to come. Jack would not be limited entirely to one role. He might quite readily play Henry V. I would much rather go once more into the breach behind him than under the leadership of Walter Hampden or Gene Tunney.

LOOKING FORWARD

When you wake with a head that is throbbing with pain, and a tongue that is coated with fur,
With an eye that is glazed and a step that is slow, when ice water is what you prefer,
I infer that the evening preceding the morning was given to laughter and song;
I infer that just living seemed joyous and bright, that you sought all the bliss to prolong;
And your only mistake was forgetting that pleasure is fleeting as time in its way,
Was forgetting the dawn that must follow the dark, and that night must give place to the day;
From what pains we were spared that we bear with ill grace as so often our joys we deplore,
If we only had thought of the morning to follow some time of the night gone before.

It is easy enough when the gray dawn is breaking, the joys of the evening have passed,
To resolve that the cup hence shall sparkle in vain, that the party we had was the last;
There's a joy in resolving that never again shall we quit the steep path that is straight;
There's a pleasure in swearing from now on forever our conduct shall be most sedate;
But again true friends gather, once more there is singing, once more there is wine that is red;
Once again all our vows are forgotten in joy, once again we awake with a head;
Yet I cannot help thinking what ease had been ours in attaining the virtue we swore,
If we only had thought of the morning to follow some time of the night gone before.

The Jesuits Discussed

THE JESUIT ENIGMA. By E. Boyd Barrett. (Boni & Liveright.)

THE Society of Jesus, since its glorious beginning under the ex-soldier and "man of the world," Ignatius Loyola, has been a source of much controversy. Pascal called them the "corrupters of youth," and George Brandes reported that the Jesuits were in the right, and that the author of "The Provincial Letters" misunderstood them. Voltaire and Carlyle voiced unflattering opinions, and in his "Wandering Jew," Eugene Sue agreed with Pascal. Clement XIV suppressed the order, and the Marquise de Pompadour, for political reasons, had them banished from France.

And now Dr. E. Boyd Barrett, formerly a member of the society, gives us a rather scathing criticism of the "Children of Ignatius" in "The Jesuit Enigma." His reason for writing this almost too candid story of Jesuitism is explained in the preface of his book. "In brief," he says, "the purpose of my story is to supply thoughtful readers with the means of forming a true estimate of Jesuitism. My story should serve alike as a counterblast to the extreme praise and the extreme blame that is customarily apportioned to the Society of Jesus. Some of my readers will regard it as a subtle attempt to undermine the accepted, tradition al view of Jesuit villainy. They may even harbor the suspicion that the author has been subsidized by the Jesuits. On the other hand, some will interpret my story as 'another attack on the Jesuits,' and may even read into it a concealed attack on the Catholic Church. Such a view will no doubt be taken by the sensitive friends of the Society of Jesus."

The author tells us, that since early manhood, his thoughts were focused exclusively on the high ideals and the brilliant endeavor of the order. What appealed to the public, concerning the Jesuits, seems to have been likewise a lure for him, for he says "The Ignatius movement appealed to the Catholic imagination, and stirred it profoundly. Nothing was more calculated to evoke enthusiastic support from the Catholic world of the sixteenth century than this daring adventure of scholarly, high-born soldier priests, vowed to fight for the church to the death; who unsheathed sharp swords against the heretics of the West and the infidels of the East. There was something of chivalry and romance in it; something that rekindled the warring knightly spirit of the age, and set pious hearts aglow."

Dr. Barrett's story is a rather round-about account of disillusionment. One sees him entering, with romantic illusions, a vocation that called for factual and prosaic thinking. After several years in the order, he found missing the kinship that he had anticipated. He found the discipline of the order irksome, and the Jesuit system of espionage unendurable. After specializing in psychology, he was given the post of teaching sociology, a subject of which he knew little or nothing. His reluctance to accept the position was waived by the vow of obedience—to the Jesuit what the vow of poverty is to the Franciscan. Dr. Bar-

The Jesuits Discussed

THE JESUIT ENIGMA. By E. Boyd Barrett. (Boni & Liveright.)

THE Society of Jesus, since its glorious beginning under the ex-soldier and "man of the world," Ignatius Loyola, has been a source of much controversy. Pascal called them the "corrupters of youth," and George Brandes reported that the Jesuits were in the right, and that the author of "The Provincial Letters" misunderstood them. Clement XIV suppressed the order, and the Marquise de Pompadour, for political reasons, had them banished from France.

And now Dr. E. Boyd Barrett, formerly a member of the society, gives us a rather scathing criticism of the "Children of Ignatius" in "The Jesuit Enigma." His reason for writing this almost too candid story of Jesuitism is explained in the preface of his book. "In brief," he says, "the purpose of my story is to supply thoughtful readers with the means of forming a true estimate of Jesuitism. My story should serve alike as a counterblast to the extreme praise and the extreme blame that is customarily apportioned to the Society of Jesus. Some of my readers will regard it as a subtle attempt to undermine the accepted, tradition view of Jesuit villainy. They may even harbor the suspicion that the author has been subsidized by the Jesuits. On the other hand, some will interpret my story as another attack on the Jesuits, and may even read into it a concealed attack on the Catholic Church. Such a view will no doubt be taken by the sensitive friends of the Society of Jesus."

The author tells us, that since early manhood, his thoughts were focused exclusively on the high ideals and the brilliant endeavor of the order. What appealed to the public, concerning the Jesuits, seems to have been likewise a lure for him, for he says "The Ignatius movement appealed to the Catholic imagination, and stirred me profoundly. Nothing was more calculated to evoke enthusiastic support from the Catholic world of the sixteenth century than this daring adventure of scholarly, high-born soldier priests, vowed to fight for the church to the death; who unsheathed sharp swords against the heretics of the West and the infidels of the East. There was something of chivalry and romance in it; something that rekindled the warring knightly spirit of the age, and set pious hearts aglow."

Dr. Barrett's story is a rather round-about account of disillusionment. One sees him entering, with romantic illusions, a vocation that called for factual and prosiac thinking. After several years in the order, he found missing the fellowship that he had anticipated. He found the discipline of the order irksome, and the Jesuit system of espionage unendurable. After specializing in psychology, he was given the post of teaching psychology, a subject of which he knew little or nothing. His reluctance to accept the position was solved by the vow of obedience—to the Jesuit what the vow of poverty is to the Franciscan. Dr. Barrett's distaste for the discipline of Jesuit rule culminated in his resignation from the order. Shortly after his withdrawal, he received a letter that had been withheld by his superiors, and on the envelope was written the word "unknown."

"The Jesuit Enigma" can scarcely be called a pleasant book. One feels that many of Dr. Barrett's statements would have been better left unsaid, and one doubts that the author's account constitutes the entire story. There will doubtless be many readers of Dr. Barrett's book who will be curious to know what the Jesuit cognoscenti will think of this volume, and will wonder what their retort to "The Jesuit Enigma" will be. If the reviewer judges correctly—he is lead to believe, that those who sit in judgment will raise their eyebrows knowingly, smile and pass the verdict "unknown."

JOHN BLACK.

THE SKULL OF SWIFT. By Leslie Shane. (Bobbs-Merrill).

There is a queer consistency in the fact that the biography of Jonathan Swift, arch enemy of man, should have been written by one who was prejudiced against him. Leslie Shane evidently went to his subject with interest but without reverence. When Swift said, "I am what I am," he never realized that some day a very literal-minded student would explain that statement to the extent of 300 pages.

Mr. Shane sees in his subject only the conventional figure, the proud, morose man, hating life and fighting it with a scornful pen. He gives Swift no soul, no touch of idealism or pity to relieve an unyielding harshness. Yet Swift was not entirely petty. His whole life showed a hatred of sham, an independence of mind and a devotion to the church that his biographer failed to note.

What Mr. Shane emphasizes is the ungracious Swift. We know the sullen Dean, his insolence toward the women who loved him, his contempt for English society, his mocking attitude toward affairs of state—the whole ironic attitude that found its fullest expression in "Gulliver's Travels."

If the author had been able to develop his character in a spirit of satire, his interpretation might have been fitting. But he uses facts with a harmless insistence. His biography achieves moments of color and action, but seldom does it make Swift live. A true study of such a man must depend on a great hatred or a great sympathy. Mr. Shane is a placid scholar who probably has little respect for intense natures. Once again Jonathan Swift is in the hands of an enemy.—RUTH SHAPIRO.

FUR FARMING FOR PROFIT. By Frank G. Ashbrook. (The MacMillan Company).

Frank G. Ashbrook is in charge of the Division of Fur Resources, United States Biological Survey. His book is an account of fur farming in North America, with some reference also to the industry in other countries. Reasons for both failures and successes are disclosed. The author tells not only how furs are produced for the market, but also the interesting characteristics and habits of the various fur-bearing animals. Directions are given on breeding, feeding, housing, sanitation and enemies of the various kinds of animals. There are many illustrations.

DEALER ORDERED TO RETURN $22,000 VAN DYCK PAINTING

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 28. — The Van Dyck painting, "Christ Taken Down From the Cross," now in possession of Vincent D. Cliff of Detroit, must be returned to its former owner, Axel Beskow, by a decision of the appellate division of the Supreme Court. The canvas is valued at $22,000.

Beskow charged the Consignment Arts Corporation had exchanged the Van Dyck picture for a work of inferior value after he had given it to them to sell.

According to the evidence Beskow's painting was delivered to Cliff in exchange for the picture known as "Doubting Thomas," valued at $14,225 and a Damascus rug valued at $2500.

$1,500,000 to Theological School.

CHICAGO, April 28.—Gifts totaling $1,500,000 to the McCormick Theological Seminary by Cyrus H. McCormick, Harold F. McCormick and their sister, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, were announced yesterday. The contributions are to be a nucleus for a $3,000,000 expansion program to be completed in the next three years.

Conforming with the request of the McCormick family, the directors have directed that the name of the institution be changed to The Presbyterian Theological Seminary of Chicago.

11 OBJECTIONS TO FLOOD BILL BY PRESIDENT

Senator Managers Think Measure as Finally Drawn Will Meet the Approval of Coolidge.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Appointment of House conferees was the only task to be completed today before the beginning of conferences looking to an agreement on flood control legislation dovetailing with the views of President Coolidge.

While the latest White House stand disclosed yesterday showed the executive as having found fault in 11 instances with the $325,000,000 Senate bill amended by the House, several Senate conference managers expressed the opinion that the measure as finally framed would meet with presidential approval.

The bill which the conferees expect to send to Mr. Coolidge next week and which was sent to conference yesterday will, it is predicted, be in practically the same form as it passed the House, but leaders see only few obstacles to overcome to win White House sanction.

They point out that of the 11 objections prepared by Army engineers and transmitted by the President to the Capitol yesterday, only six are in controversy between the two Houses and that only two of these are important. One of these tentatively was agreed to by the Senate conferees in an informal conference after receipt of the presidential memorandum while the other was turned down for the time being.

Financial Burden Too Great.

The President, anxious that a reasonable flood control act be approved at this session, feels that the House bill, while an improvement in administrative respects over the Senate measure, carries too heavy a financial burden.

He believes this measure ultimately would cost the Government a billion and a half dollars for work which he has been informed should not cost more than $300,000,000. He feels his stand also has been strengthened by the fact that he has seen no objections to it raised among actual residents of the Mississippi flood area, but that these only have come from those who own property in the flood zones but reside outside of them.

Most of the Senate conferees are said to be prepared to accept the House amendment providing that the Federal Government pay for flowage rights, the money which will go to land owners whose property would be cut up for diverting the main channel of the Mississippi.

The administration objects to this amendment because it involves, besides the purchase of easement rights from the property holders, the construction of levees and revetments to stem the floods in the Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana lowlands.

One Change Expected.

One of the changes proposed by the administration and tentatively accepted by the Senate conferees, relates to the appropriation of $10,000,000 for work already authorized and not called for in the new project.

This has to do with levee work on the Mississippi between Rock Island, Ill., and Cape Girardeau, Mo., and on the outlets and tributaries of the Mississippi between the Illinois city and the head of the passes in so far as the latter are affected by the big stream's backwaters.

While the House proposed that for such work on the tributaries, rights of way and 33 1-3 per cent of the cost of this work should be paid for by the states or levee districts affected, the President insisted that rights of way and one-third of the cost of the work heretofore authorized on the main river between Rock Island and Cape Girardeau should be provided for by the states or levee districts.

WAR DEPARTMENT PURCHASING AGENCY REMAINS IN ST. LOUIS

Proposal Is Dropped to Move It to Chicago, Commerce Chamber Says.

Word has been received here that the War Department has dropped its proposal to remove the purchasing agency of the army quartermaster corps from St. Louis to Chicago. An announcement by the Chamber of Commerce, which had opposed the change for five years, said this meant $1,500,000 to $2,000,000 in business would be retained here annually as a result of the decision.

A thorough investigation of the proposed removal was made at the direction of Secretary of War Davis. The army had desired to concentrate quartermaster work in New York, Chicago and San Francisco for economy in purchases. The Chamber argued that the location of St. Louis and diversification of products available here made it wise not to change. The decision was communicated to Maj. R. C. Brady, local quartermaster, and Maj. George Luberoff, procurement planning officer, by Quartermaster General B. F. Cheatham.

MARTIN MADDEN FUNERAL MONDAY IN HINSDALE, ILL.

Body of Veteran Illinois Congressman Will Lie in State in House Sunday Afternoon.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Death has removed from Congress Martin B. Madden of Illinois, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, the veteran Representative was stricken yesterday at his desk in the capitol.

Word of the death of the "chief," as Madden was called by many of his colleagues, spread quickly. In the brief lapse between the collapse of the chairman while he was talking to a life-long friend, Representative Sproul of Illinois, more than a dozen members hurriedly gathered in the committee room which adjoined his office.

The chairman had been placed on a couch by Sproul and committee clerks, and Representative Sirovich of New York, a physician, and Dr. Robert McGrath of Chicago, who was waiting in an outer office to see Mr. Madden, tried to revive him by artificial respiration and by administering spirits of ammonia, the only stimulant at hand.

House and Senate Adjourn.

Immediately upon the announcement of his death, the House adjourned out of respect and a few minutes later the Senate did likewise. Today, the House was called into session to appoint committees, one to arrange for the body to lie in state in the House chamber for several hours Sunday, and the other to accompany the body to Mr. Madden's home at Hinsdale, Ill., a Chicago suburb, for burial Monday afternoon.

In recent years only two members have lain in state in the House chamber—Representative James R. Mann and Speaker Champ Clark.

The closing years of his life were filled with legislative warfare, yet, to within 15 minutes of the time when an acute attack of heart trouble brought death, he was as full of fight as when he took over his chairmanship several years ago.

First, he had to fight for the prerogative of his committee in the House itself. He took over the chairmanship almost simultaneously with the inauguration of the national budget system which brought a realignment of House committees and almost over night more than trebled the power of the appropriations body.

This change, taking as it did the power to appropriate funds from a half dozen or more other House committees, aroused some jealousy over the authority placed in the Appropriation Committee's hands and only a dominant leader's grit could have held for it the prestige it received by law.

Fight Against Senate.

But in addition to this, Madden had another problem on his hands—the Senate. Up to the time of the budget system the Senate frequently had indulged in the practice of adding millions of dollars to the House appropriation measure, many times virtually rewriting the bills. But under Madden the brakes were applied.

Madden's third big job was to keep the total of the appropriation for the whole Government machinery, amounting annually to more than $4,000,000,000, to the minimum. For weeks each fall, before Congress convened, he and his committee were back at the Capitol, going over proposed expenditures and doing their best to chip off here and there any item that could be passed up.

Coolidge's Tribute.

President Coolidge, Vice President Dawes, Cabinet members and other high Government officials paid high tribute to Madden.

President Coolidge sent Mrs. Madden his condolences at the death of her husband, praising Madden as one "of our great men" both because of his personal character and public policies. The message follows:

"The passing of your distinguished husband, Hon. Martin B. Madden, is a personal loss to me and a great loss to our country. I could always rely upon his support to defend the Treasury of the United States. He had about him a rugged honesty and great force of character that won the confidence and respect of all who came in contact with him. His long service in the House of Representatives was marked with an increasing usefulness which it will be exceedingly difficult to replace. He will truly rank as one of our great men. I wish to express to you and your family my deep sympathy, in which Mrs. Coolidge joins."

Dawes' Statement.

"In the death of Congressman Madden," said Vice President Dawes, "the Nation and public service suffers a grave loss. Congressman Madden occupied a key position in the administration of government. An able and industrious man, he reached a commanding position of influence as chairman of the House Appropriations Committee because of years of toilsome work in familiarizing himself with the actual revenue needs of all the departments and independent establishments of government. * * * He was an unswerving supporter of the budget and the effective co-operation of Congress with the Bureau of the Budget is largely due to his leadership.

Mr. Madden is survived by his widow and a daughter, Mrs. Paul Henderson, wife of a former Assistant Postmaster General.

It is expected that Representative William R. Wood of Indiana, will succeed him as committee chairman. While Representative Daniel R. Anthony of Kansas, is the next Republican in the point of seniority, he has been ill in Arizona and has announced that he will not be a candidate for re-election.

New York Day by Day
By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, April 28.

AMERICANS who have visited the home of Ralph Barton, the artist, in Paris will not be surprised to learn he has been offered an enormous figure for the motion picture which he unreels for friends and which he directed, photographed, edited and titled.

It is a movie of the celebrities who have visited the unique mansion Barton and his French wife occupy in Rue Nicolo. And has been fashioned into a three-reel travesty of "Camille," the entire action taking place in a cozy corner of the Barton home.

The chief humor is in the hilarious captions done in the Bertha M. Clay manner. Anita Loos is "Camille," and her husband, John Emerson, is Armand. There is a prologue in which Sinclair Lewis offers allegorical studies of Greed, Hate, Love, Fear and so on.

The piece de resistance is the scene in which Sascha Guitry and his wife, Yvonne Printemps, engage in animated conversation with Charlie Chaplin. The Guitrys speak no English and Chaplin speaks no French, but they argue and coo, and it offers a bit of rare artistry.

Chaplin has another scene with Mrs. Ralph Barton, an accomplished pianist and composer, in which they render a piano duet with grave concert air seriousness. Ethel Barrymore "emotes" in a weepy scene following the death of Camille, as do Pauline Starke and Richard Barthelmess.

Alfred Knopf plays a wily Arab desert chieftain, and scarcely needs a make-up. Paul Robeson, the Negro actor, is shown in the prologue as Dumas, the author, dashing off his immortal tome between copious flagons of fiery brandy. H. L. Mencken and Joseph Hergesheimer have a ribald drunken scene.

Others moving through the picture are George Jean Nathan, Paul Claudel, Ferenc Molnar, Somerset Maugham, Patsy Ruth Miller and Julia Hoyt. But it is Chaplin who carries off top honors. With forks in two breakfast rolls, he mimics his own splay feet and walk that would stamp him a great comedian without other achievements. Mr. Barton will, of course, not sell the picture, for all artists contributed their services for strictly private production.

THE hostesses employed in the Alice Foote MacDougall coffee houses of Italian and Spanish splendor are not permitted to wear short hair on duty. If the head has been shingled, a switch must be worn. Mrs. MacDougall does not think short hair becoming. From a canvasser of coffee, Mrs. MacDougall has become one of the foremost business women in New York. Her restaurants and coffee salesrooms do a gross of more than $3,000,000 annually. She applied imagination and romance to a prosaic business and—well, try to get in any of her places at the rush hour.

IT is my conviction that most business enterprises skidding into bankruptcy courts flop there as a result of a lack of imagination. Woolworth had the cheapest of cheap ideas until he gave it the flame of imagination. The movie is a nickel entertainment idea glorified. The list is endless. As a rule, where you find a drab business you find a drab imagination.

I HAVE been chuckling all day at a picture in Punch, and five people to whom I showed it never cracked a smile. A tattered, disheveled victim who had just been run over by an expensive car was protesting to the haughty dowager in the back seat. Gazing at him through her lorgnette, she remarked: "One would think you had never been run over before."

101 RANCH WILD WEST SHOW OPENS 3-DAY ENGAGEMENT

Parade to Downtown District to Be Held Today; Chariot Races Yesterday.

With whooping cowboys, yelling Indians, the crack of revolver shots and bucking bronchos, the first performance of the 101 Ranch Wild West Show was given here last night on the lot at Grand boulevard and Market street. Performances also will be given today and tomorrow.

The opening spectacle, "Julius Caesar," with its chariot races, was followed by trick horseback riding. A group of Mexicans who recently joined the show, gave exhibitions with lariats and American cowboys showed how they ride on their deep saddles.

The performance was concluded with cowboys trying to ride wild steers, brought to St. Louis from Western ranches. A parade was held today from the show grounds to Twelfth boulevard and return. Chief Holy Bear, said to be a survivor of Custer's last fight, was taken to the City Hall by Joe C. Miller Jr. to call on Mayor Miller.

HUNGARY WILL DEMAND EXTRADITION OF BELA KUN

Budapest Government Wants to Punish Communist for Terrorism in 1919.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 28.—Hungary will demand the extradition of Bela Kun after his trial by the Austrian courts.

In Government circles it is believed that his punishment for excesses committed under his Bolshevik regime in 1919 is a great moral obligation of the country.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, April 28.—The Hungarian Communist, Bela Kun, who was arrested here yesterday after having spent six years in Russia, is held on the formal charge of entering Austria under a false German passport.

However, the police say his real intention was to renew his efforts to stir up a revolution in Hungary and inaugurate a red regime under the tutelage of Moscow.

The agitator's arrest caused a sensation in Vienna and Budapest. Large quantities of Communist propaganda were seized in his offices, camouflaged as a wholesale drug concern.

BLACKMER AND O'NEIL BOND HOLDINGS TRACED

Former's $763,000 All From Continental, but None at All of Latter's.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Senator Gerald P. Nye (Rep.), North Dakota, chairman of the Senate Teapot Dome Committee, announced today that an examination of the $763,000 of Liberty bonds held in trust for H. M. Blackmer, expatriate American oil official, all of them came from the Continental Trading Co., Ltd., of Canada. This was the total of Blackmer's share of the profits in the Continental deal.

None of the bonds which James E. O'Neil, another self-exiled American oil operator, caused to be turned over to the Prairie Oil and Gas Co. is a Continental Liberty bond, Nye said. He added that it was the assumption that O'Neil, when he made a hurried trip to Montreal several years ago to make restitution to his company, merely told his son to turn over $800,000 of Liberty bonds from his holdings of such securities in his safety deposit box in New York and that the son picked out the bonds at random.

An official transcript of the testimony given last Tuesday by Robert W. Stewart of Chicago, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil of Indiana, before the committee was forwarded yesterday to John D. Rockefeller Jr., who has substantial holdings of Standard Oil stock. Nye wrote Rockefeller that, in view of his interest in the previous testimony given by Stewart, he supposed he would have an even greater interest in Stewart's latest utterances on the Continental deal.

NICARAGUAN ELECTION POSTPONED TO NOV. 4

Gen. McCoy, Appointed by Coolidge to Supervise Voting, Returning to U. S.

By the Associated Press.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 28.—The Nicaraguan presidential election has been postponed from Oct. 7 to Nov. 4.

United States Marines have been attempting to suppress the revolt led by Gen. Sandino, who refused to accept the Stimson agreement providing for American supervision of the elections, but today the whereabouts of the insurgent leader was unknown. His men, however, recently extended their activities to the eastward invading the mining district.

Gen. Frank R. McCoy, president of the National Election Board, who was named to supervise the election by President Coolidge, is returning to the United States today.

Registration days have been fixed for Sept. 23, 26 and 30 and Oct. 3 and 7. Gen. McCoy is expected back in Nicaragua before that time.

Low, 1928	178.84	138.36

Total stock sales 2,396,300 shares.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Heavy buying of the oil shares, under the leadership of Standard Oil of New York, which advanced three points to 38, a new high for the year, featured the sharp upturn in prices in today's stock market. Public utility and mining shares also gave impressive demonstrations of group strength. Extreme gains in the active issues ranged from one to 10 points, with trading again in very heavy volume.

Buying operations of speculative pools furnished the chief impetus for the advance. Enormous blocks of Standard Oil of New York and Louisiana Oil changed hands.

Buying of the rails was rather selective in character, with Jersey Central, Delaware & Hudson, Texas & Pacific and Chicago Northwestern up two to four points, in the vanguard of the advance.

Sharp gains also were recorded by such issues as McCrory Stores B, Dupont, Adams Express, Patino Mines, Consolidated Gas, Brooklyn Edison, Westinghouse Electric and Otis Elevator.

Total sales approximated 2,000,000 shares.

Early buying centered largely in the railroad, oil and public utility shares. Initial gains of a point or so were recorded by Consolidated Gas, Allied Chemical and New York Central. Standard Oil of New York advanced fractionally to a new 1928 high record at 35⅝.

Case Threshing Machine soared 9 points to 202 and Atlantic Refining, Air Reduction, Du Pont, Adams Express, Westinghouse Electric and Victor Talking Machine advanced 2 to 4 points. American Tobacco, which was heavy earlier in the week following the announcement of cigarette price cuts, turned strong.

COTTON FUTURES LOWER ON NEW YORK MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, April 28.—A somewhat reactionary tendency was noted in the cotton market today after recent advances, but there was still considerable nervousness over weather conditions and early declines of 10 to 15 points were followed by rallies. May sold up from 21.15c to 21.34c and October from 20.76c to 21c, or about 4 to 13 points net higher during the forenoon on unfavorable Eastern belt weather details, but later eased again under renewed realizing.

The market closed steady at net declines of 1 to 7 points.

NEW TOP FOR SEASON IN CHICAGO WHEAT TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 28.—Dust storms in both regions of Nebraska and Kansas today and prospects of continued dearth of rain sent wheat soaring to above previous top records for the season. Buying on a large scale and was further stimulated as a result of crop damage reports from Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Big profit-taking sales were readily absorbed and wheat market closed at the day's highest level.

Final quotations on wheat were buoyant, 2 to 3⅛c net higher, with corn unchanged to ⅝c down, oats varying from ⅛c decline to an equal advance, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10c.

Despite the fact that the Liverpool wheat market appeared unresponsive to upturns on this side of the Atlantic, houses here with foreign connections were active buyers today of future deliveries of wheat. Meanwhile, in addition to Nebraska and Kansas dust storms and other unfavorable domestic crop news, reports that European grain crops have probably suffered further injury. A further bullish factor today was that the weekly domestic weather forecast held little hope of any appreciable moisture in dry sections of the Southwest.

NEW TOP FOR SEASON IN CHICAGO WHEAT TRADE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 28.—Dust storms in the regions of Nebraska and Kansas and prospects of continued dearth of rain sent wheat soaring to above previous top records for the season. Buying was on a large scale and was further stimulated as a result of crop damage reports from Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. Big profit-taking sales were readily absorbed, and wheat market closed at the day's highest level.

Final quotations on wheat were buoyant, 2 to 3⅛c net higher, with corn unchanged to ⅝c down, oats varying from ⅛c decline to an equal advance, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10c.

Despite the fact that the Liverpool wheat market appeared unresponsive to the upturns on this side of the Atlantic, houses here with foreign connections were active buyers today of future deliveries of wheat. Meanwhile, in addition to Nebraska and Kansas dust storms and unfavorable domestic crop news, reports at hand that European grain crops had probably suffered further injury. A further bullish factor today was that the weekly domestic weather forecast held out little hope of any appreciable moisture in dry sections of the Southwest.

STREET CLEANER, 85, RUN DOWN BY AUTO

George A. Markel Critically Injured While at Work; Motorist Speeds Away.

George A. Markel, 85 years old, a street cleaner, was struck and seriously injured by an automobile, the driver of which sped away, as he was working at Taylor and Florissant avenues today. Markel was taken to City Hospital by a passing motorist. His skull was fractured and he was internally injured. Police were unable to find anyone who could give a description of the machine. Markel lives at 4240 Gano avenue.

Three men and a woman were injured when a motor truck and automobile collided at Skinker and Clayton roads yesterday. The truck coming east in Oakland avenue, had turned at a tangent to enter Clayton when the automobile, driven in the opposite direction, by G. Horace Stayton, 7324 Bruno avenue, collided with it.

Harry Dittmar, driver of the truck, 3428 South Second street, suffered injuries to his head. His brother, Walter Dittmar, and Eugene Bill, 2903 Indiana avenue, who were riding with him, were cut and bruised. Stayton's wife was cut on the head and arms.

Thomas J. Burns, 60 years old, suffered a compound fracture of the right leg yesterday when, according to police, he walked into the side of Bus No. 13 of the People's Motobus Co., at Fourth and Washington. The rear wheel of the bus ran over his leg. En route to city hospital Traffic Policeman Schlewing made a tourniquet of Burns' belt as a first aid measure to minimize the loss of blood. Burns is vice-president of the M. L. Kenney Transfer Co. and lives at 5855 Highland avenue.

Charles Antone, 5, 1019 Gratiot street, was run down and seriously injured by an automobile as he ran into the street in front of his home yesterday. His skull and pelvis were fractured. The driver was arrested.

A bus in which 20 children were riding home from the Flynn Park School, 7220 Waterman avenue, University City, was hit by a Creve Coeur car at the Ahern boulevard intersection yesterday. Two of the children were slightly cut and the remainder were thrown from their seats to the floor but were uninjured. The driver said he did not hear the car approaching.

Five young women riding in a Chevrolet sedan were cut and bruised last night when the machine was hit and overturned by a taxicab at Grand boulevard and Easton avenue. Arthur Williams, a Negro, who drove the cab, was arrested charged with failure to make a boulevard stop at Grand. The young women injured are: Miss Katherine Bell, 5029 Terry avenue, who drove; Miss Betty Murphy, 5112 St. Louis avenue; Miss Helen Quinlan, 4039 Kennerly; Miss Mary Gerdes, 5040 St. Louis avenue and Miss A. McBride, 4119 St. Louis avenue.

BULLET HOLE IN AUTO CAUSES ARREST OF SIX

One Confesses Four Robberies Including Holdup of Industrial Loan Co. Branch.

When the victim of a holdup fired a shot that punctured the gasoline tank of an automobile in which the men who had robbed him were driving away he provided police with a clew that has resulted in the arrest of four men and the confession of four holdups.

The men under arrest are Joseph Ehrhardt, who has served two Workhouse terms; Wallace Kruse, who has served a sentence for robbery. Later he declared Kerbel.

Fred M. Classe, who was held up by two men and robbed of $159 in his furniture store at 2727 South Broadway, two weeks ago, shot at the robbers as they drove away. A bullet punctured the gasoline tank, and the car was abandoned. It belonged to Schaljo. He told police he had lent it to Ehrhardt for a trip to East St. Louis in search of employment.

Confesses Four Holdups.

Ehrhardt, arrested, at first denied participation in the robbery. Later he declared Kerbel had suggested the robbery, and he and Kruse had committed it.

A $140 holdup at the Star Furniture Co., 1540 South Broadway, April 14, according to Ehrhardt, was committed by Kruse, Kerbel and himself, with Schaljo sharing in the loot for suggesting it.

On April 19 Kruse and Ehrhardt, the latter confessed, held up Walter Miller, a service car driver, and took his touring car, using it a few hours later in a $1300 holdup at the Industrial Loan Co. branch office, 3616 South Grand boulevard. The car was later found abandoned, with a tin box, which had contained the money, in the tonneau. Miller is said by police to have identified Ehrhardt and Kruse.

Two Women Held as Accessories.

No admissions were obtained from Kruse and the other prisoners.

Two young women are held as accessories after the robberies. Kruse was arrested last night in company with one of the women.

He had a bank book showing he made a deposit of $400 two days after the Industrial Loan Co. holdup. On the day of the robbery he paid an installment of $100 on the woman's automobile, said to have been bought from a Cuckoo gangster.

On April 13 Kruse was fined $100 by Circuit Judge Killoren for carrying a concealed weapon, but the fine was stayed until May. Kruse's bank book indicates he was able to pay the fine at the time.

Fractures Skull in Fall.

Falling from a second floor porch of his home, 1323 Blair avenue, Theodore Melczweski, 63 years old, suffered a skull fracture yesterday. He said he lost his balance.

$200,000 AUTO WITH CHASSIS OF SILVER AND BODY OF GOLD

Hungarian Manufacturer to Build Car as Gift to Lord Rothermere.

By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, April 28.—Franz Berta, Hungary's largest automobile manufacturer, has asked the Government to approve a gift to Lord Rothermere, British publisher, of a $200,0000 automobile with a chassis of pure silver and a body covered with hammered gold.

The gift would be an expression of Hungary's thanks for Lord Rothermere's agitation for revision of the treaty of Trianon designed to restore to Hungary territories in Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia and Rumania, inhabited by Hungarian minorities.

Carl Laemmle's Nephew Hurt.

By the Associated Press.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 28.—Ernest Laemmle, motion picture director and nephew of Carl Laemmle, is in a serious condition at a hospital here as a result of an accident in which his automobile apparently turned over several times. Laemmle was found by Beverly Hills police Thursday night, unconscious and pinned by the left arm under his automobile. The car was on the sidewalk.

WOMAN IN AUTO HELD UP, ROBBED OF RINGS

Mrs. May Gibson Crowded to Curb in 4400 Block on Enright.

As Mrs. May Jackson was driving an automobile west in the 4400 block Enright avenue at 9 o'clock last night, a machine in which two Negroes rode crowded her car into the curb. One of the Negroes got on the running board of Mrs. Jackson's automobile and, pointing at her hands, commanded:

"Take off those rings."

Mrs. Jackson gave the Negro the rings, valued at $585, and he took her purse in which was $47, she reported. The Negroes then drove rapidly west in Enright, escaping. Mrs. Jackson lives at 4507 Gibson avenue.

Three Kroger store managers were robbed yesterday and last night, two of them just after they had closed for the day. From Oren Turnbough, manager at 116 North Channing, $83 was taken as he was going home. An armed man who entered the store at 2326 Cass avenue took $25 from Charles Jacobs, the manager. Walter Hofforth, manager at 811 North Garrison, was robbed for the second time in a week when an armed Negro took $22 from him as he was [illegible]

SPORTSMAN'S PARK, April 28.—The Browns slipped this afternoon, losing to the Chicago White Sox in the third game of their series here.

The score was 9 to 6.

The best weather of the spring smiled. A crowd of 8000 attended. Ormsby, Guthrie and Hildebrand did the umpiring.

Harold Wiltse, the lefthanded pitcher obtained from the Boston Red Sox in a trade for Walter Miller, reported to Manager Howard this morning and probably will be given a chance to start a game when the Browns as soon as he becomes acclimated.

The game:

FIRST INNING.

WHITE SOX—Clancy popped to Blue in short left. Moore doubled to left center. Metzler singled. Barrett singled to center, scoring Moore and sending Metzler to third. Barrett stole second. Blue sent a short fly to Manush. Schang walked, filling the bases. Falk struck out. ONE RUN.

BROWNS—McNeely hit the ball pitch to right center for two bases. O'Rourke singled to right, scoring McNeely. Manush flied to right center, sending O'Rourke to third. Schulte hit for Clancy and O'Rourke was out at the plate, Clancy to Kamm to Purdy. Kress tripled to left center, scoring Manush and O'Rourke. Blue doubled to right center, scoring Kress. Brannon flied to Metzler. Schang filed to Falk. FOUR RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

PADDOCK SETS NEW RECORD FOR 175 YARDS

By the Associated Press.

FRANKLIN FIELD, PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—Despite the fact that a 30 foot section of the retaining wall of the stadium collapsed, spilling a ton of brick and about 50 spectators onto the track, Charley Paddock sped to a new world's record of 17 2-5 seconds for 175 yards in the mud today at the Penn Relay carnival.

The brick wall, seven feet above the track edge, gave way as the spectators leaned out to see the start of the special sprint race featuring Paddock. There was a wild scene as several dozen school boys and girls tumbled down in a heap, covering half the track, but Paddock, leading three Penn rivals, swerved out and kept on.

Obscure College Wins Two-Mile.

The intercollegiate two-mile championship relay was captured by Bates College of Maine, for the first time in the history of the event. Its quartet put on a strong finish to beat out Harvard and Ohio State. New York University's crack team, indoor champions were distanced in the early stages and Phil Edwards, Negro star, came in fifth, just behind Boston college.

Plansky, Georgetown, Wins Decathlon for Third Time in Four Years

By the Associated Press.

FRANKLIN FIELD, PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—Tony Plansky, burly former Georgetown football star, captured the Penn Relay Carnival Decathlon championship today for the third time in four years, establishing himself as an outstanding Olympic candidiate by overcoming a record breaking field of rivals.

Plansky, now representing the Saint Alponsus A. A. of Boston, outlasted a field of 18 starters that was cut exactly in half when the last of the 10 events, the 1500-meter run was finished. He triumphed today in the closing half of the all around test over Kenneth Doherty, Detroit City College star, who finished a close second.

While the final point tabulation was still missing, Tom Churchill, young Oklahoma ace, appeared sure of third place. Whitey Lloyd, Navy star, withdrew in the 1500-meter run after winning three events, in two of which he broke records and tying the Decathlon mark in the other.

The decathlon field was reduced to 13 contenders by the withdrawal of four more pertormers, including Barney Berlinger, Pennsylvania freshman, who was fourth after five events had been run off. Berlinger strained some leg muscles and withdrew on the orders of his coach, Lawson Robertson, rather than run further risks.

The others who dropped out and their previous positions were: Walter Gunsby Jr., Dickinson College, eighth; W. R. O'Dell, Clemson College, ninth, and Donald Foote, Baltimore, fifteenth. Jack McIntosh, Monmouth (Ill.) College, withdrew yesterday.

Another contestant, William Elliott, Maryland, withdrew in this event reducing the field to an even dozen.

Allan Logan, the Atlanta star, emerged as the winner of the pole vault in the all-around scramble, with the two chief point contenders, Plansky and Doherty, finishing second and third.

TWO HANDICAPS OF FAIRMOUNT SPRING MEET DRAW 138 ENTRANTS

ALMOST SAME HORSES NAMED FOR EACH EVENT

Entries for the Statler Hotel and Jefferson Hotel Handicaps, features on the spring program at Fairmount Park, were released today by Racing Secretary J. B. Campbell. The Statler, to be run June 16, closed with 74 nominations, while the Jefferson, closing day feature, drew 64. The Fairmount meeting begins May 26 and closes July 7.

The Statler, at a mile and one-sixteenth, is for 3-year-olds and up, and has drawn many good handicap horses. Edward F. Seagram, owner of the Seagram Stable, a Canadian establishment, heads the list of nominators. He has entered Edisto, Gaffsman, Rolls Royce, Sir Harry and Solace. Bloomfield Stable, H. G. Bedwell and Audley Farm Stable are next with four each. George Collins, E. B. McLean and Alexander Pantages are represented by three each.

Among the prominent racers entered are: Misstep, one of the choices for the Kentucky Derby; Cotlogomor, winner of the 1927 New Orleans Handicap; Jock, owned by E. B. McLean; F. M. Grabner's Chicago; Phil Reuter's Galahad; War Feathers, owned by Howard Oots and H. P. Headley's good mare, Helen's Babe.

St. Louis is represented by William Dondas' Mickey D. and Al G. Woodman's imported 3-year-old, The Show Off.

Practically the same band of racers are nominated for the Jefferson. Audley Farm Stable is represented in the Jefferson by five, to lead the nominators. H. G. Bedwell and E. F. Seagram have named four each, while Bloomfield Stable, George Collins and E. B. McLean are represented by three each.

The Statler and Jefferson Handicaps carry values of $5000 added. The Jefferson will be run over a distance of one mile and an eighth.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Time to Relent.

PYLE'S circus brought into St. Louis a runner of olden days—a celebrity in his time—the first man officially to be timed in 9 3-5 seconds for the 100 yards, Arthur Duffey.

As a Georgetown University athlete 25 years ago Duffey ran the distance in record time twice: once on cinders in America and, again, if memory serves, on turf in England.

But today you will scan record books in vain for any notice of this achievement. That was because Duffey was convicted by the A. A. U. of having accepted too much expense money and, as a consequence, was deprived of all his honors. His name was removed from the A. A. U. records.

Only one other athlete in the history of sports ever suffered such a public humiliation. That was Jim Thorpe, who had his Olympic honors and trophies taken away from him because he played professional baseball during the summer months under an assumed name.

* * *

A suggestion, made in this column, to have Duffey's marks restored to the records, was taken up but voted down by the A. A. U. In the light of the present day tolerance of self-exploitation by amateurs, the refusal seems an injustice. Duffey's American record, at least, was without taint and was made in an intercollegiate meet.

As a matter of history the achievements of both Duffey and Thorpe should be set forth in some official form, even though the subsequent action against both were set forth along with them.

Cards Now Favorites.

EVIDENTLY the bookmakers are not taking the Giants too seriously, as yet. The Cardinals are now favorites to win the pennant, New York dispatches state. The Pirates, from being favorites, have backed up to 7 to 2, with the Cardinals 2½ to 1 to win and the Giants and Cubs, 4 to 1 each.

That's where the Giants belong — perhaps lower; for the Cincinnati Reds have been showing improved form. The Giants have been playing the weak section of the pennant race and the outlook may not be so rose-colored in a few short days hence, when the Western grind begins.

The old guard pitchers for the Cardinals have shown in last season form. This, plus the return to the regular lineup of Thevenow and O'Farrell, and the greatly improved playing and hitting of Douthit, are responsible for the favoritism now assigned the Cardinals.

Despite some outfield uncertainties and an uneasy feeling around third base, the St. Louis team appears the logical choice.

ROOSEVELT DEFEATS PRINCIPIA IN DUAL TRACK MEET, 71-50

Roosevelt triumphed over Principia Academy in a dual track meet at Taylor field this morning, 71 to 50, the Rough Riders capturing eight first places of the 13 track and field events on the program.

Coles of Principia finished among the first three the most times, taking first place in the broad jump and 220-yard dash, second in the 100-yard dash, and third in the shot put. However, Broe of Roosevelt finished first in one more event than did Coles, winning in the 880-yard dash, shot put and mile run.

The outstanding performance was by Coles in jumping 20 feet, 9¼ inches to take first place in the broad jump.

Fire Opal outrun in the early stages worked his way to the leaders with good speed continued with good energy for the final issue and managed to get up in the closing strides. Farceur away fast set a good pace and held on well after shaking off Sir Barley. Latter moved up fast rounding far turn but hung in the final test. Pleasant Smiles had to be hard urged all the way but tired at end. Rooney went evenly. Carefree would not break and closed a big gap after being left at the post.

$2 mutuels paid: Fire Opal, win, $8.90; place, $4.40; show, $3.40. Farceur, place, $8.50; show, 5.70. Sir Barley, show, $5.80.

SECOND RACE—$1200, claiming, 4-year-olds and up, mile and a quarter—Star good, won driving, place easily. Went to post at 3:04; at post 1 minute. Winner, b. g., 9 Eroven—L'Adorable. Trainer, G. C. Brenton. Time, :24-5, :50, 1:17, 1:44 3-5, 2:13 3-5. Value to winners, $850, $200, $100, $50.

HORSE.	WT.	PP.	ST.	¼	½	¾	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Equivalent Odds to 1.
Ruban Rogeu	110	1	2	7	4^h	5^6	2^4	$1^{1/2}$	L. Schaefer	2.10

Reciprocate	108	3	6	6^{nk}	7	7	7	7	F. Whitaker	59.55

Ruban Rouge, trailed far off the pace in the early stages worked his way to the leaders on the outside closed with good courage in the last qarter mile to wear Valentino down inside the final sixteenth. Latter rated in front under stiff restraint, saved ground all the way and heldon tenacious. Turquois rated off the pace made a bold effort at the far turn butwas not good enough. Ed Pendleton quit. El Canoe tired badly. The others were never factors.

$2 mutuels paid: Ruban Rouge, win, $6.20; place, $3.60; show, $2.80. Valentino, place $4.30; show, $3.00. Turquoise, show $3.50.

THIRD RACE—$1500, the Flash Handicap, 3-year-olds and up, five and one-half furlongs: Start good, won easily, place same. Went to post 3:36. Off at once. Winner blk. f., 4, by Meridian-Dignity. Trainer, T. J. Donohue. Time, :23 3-5, :48 2-5, 1.08. Value to winners, $1000, $390, $210, $50.

HORSE.	WT.	PP.	ST.	¼	½	Str.	Fin.	Jockey.	Equivalent Odds to 1.
Dignus	109	3	2	1^2	$1^{1\frac{1}{2}}$	1^5	1^8	H. Little	1.00

Reprove	110	1	4	4	4	4	4	L. Edwards	8.10

Dignus, at home in the going, showing keen speed in the footing, held Tuskegee the first half mile and drew out rapidly thereafter. Tuskegee was eased back in the early running, went to the outside when called on, but was never able to seriously menace the winner and was tiring fast. Dust Broom raced well. Reprove dwelt when the break came and was good as left.

$2 mutuels paid: Dignus, win $4, place $2.30, show out; Tuskegee, place $2.60, show out; Dust Broom, show out.

When Scumacher threw wild trying to catch him off second Ross continued to third. Carr sent asacrifice fly to Sheridan. Ross scoring after the catch. Slater flied to Santens. FOUR RUNS.

NINTH INNING.

CENTRAL—Tieman batted for Dyer and was hit by a pitched ball. Kamp fanned. Schumacher walked. Santens flied to Fox. Heideman walked, filling the bases. Bassman also walked forcing Tieman across the plate. Sibley struck out. ONE RUN.

MAPLEWOOD LOSES COUNTY LEAGUE LEAD WHEN KIRKWOOD WINS

Maplewood High tumbled from the lead in the County League when they lost to Kirkwood, 2 to 1, yesterday afternoon on the Kirkwood diamond, in a pitchers' battle between Thompson of Kirkwood and Al Bruno of Maplewood.

Kirkwood took an early lead by scoring two runs in the second inning and then retained the lead throughout the entire game. Maplewood threatened to break through in the seventh when they filled the bases, but the Kirkwood defense tightened and Maplewood was able to shove across only one run.

KANSAS CITY CAPTURES ATTENDANCE PRIZE IN AMERICAN ASSOCIATION

KANSAS CITY, April 28.—For the second time in many years Kansas City last night had a grip on the Thomas J. Hickey cup emblematic of the banner opening day attendance among American Association baseball clubs.

Fans turned out to see the Kansas City Blues win from the Toledo Mudhens, last year's champions, numbered 14,150 according to the official count. The margin over the attendance at Toledo weeks ago, until today the largest, was over a thousand persons. Toledo's opening day crowd was figured at 12,848.

This Man Knows How To Grow Hair

HE IS a trained Thomas' scalp specialist. He knows the symptoms of the fourteen external causes of baldness and he knows specifically how each should be treated. He knows exactly how to end the various forms of dandruff; how to stop falling hair; and how to rejuvenate your scalp to a normal healthy condition conducive to the growth of strong new hair.

Your particular scalp disorder should be treated by this trained Thomas' specialist who does nothing but examine and treat the various forms of hair and scalp troubles. In growing hair and preventing baldness he replaces guesswork and general "cure-all" remedies with scientific treatment designed to meet your own particular needs.

You, Too, Can Have a Good Head of Hair

Last year The Thomas' successfully administered 321,562 treatments in their forty-two offices throughout the United States and Canada. This treatment grows hair, stops falling hair, ends dandruff, and makes the scalp healthy. What they have done for others with their fifteen-year proved treatment they can do for you. Call for a complete examination by a Thomas' specialist—there is no charge or obligation.

Groucher, in 15 Races as Two-Year-Old, Is One of Whitney's Derby Entrants

NO. 20—Derby CANDIDATES.

Groucher.

Groucher was the busiest of the Whitney two-year-olds last year, facing the barrier fifteen times in the East and Middle West. He participated in many stakes, among them the Belmont Futurity and Juvenile, Keene Memorial, Kentucky Jockey Club and National Stallion Stakes.

Groucher is one of 12 horses named for the 54th renewal of the Kentucky Derby by Whitney. About five of them are being pointed for the stake. The best of the others is the good colt Victorian, winner of four races in six starts.

Groucher is a home-bred son of Whisk Broom II, sire of many Whitney winners, out of the great mare, Calamity Jane. He was among the leaders of the 2-year-olds last year, winning $28,745.

Groucher was a bad actor in his early 2-year-old career, being left at the post in one race and wheeling in two others. He broke out of the maiden class in his second race at Jamaica.

BREEDING, RECORD OF GROUCHER

Ch c 3 by Whisk Broom II-Calamity Jane by Pennant. Owner, Harry P. Whitney. Trainer, Jimmy Rowe Jr.

Sts	1st	2nd	3rd	Won
15	4	3	2	$28,745

Stakes won—National Stallion; second in Great American Stakes, Belmont Juvenile; third in Keene Memorial.

Winter book odds—80 to 1.

Scores Over Nassak.

After the Jamaica meeting, Groucher was shipped to Belmont, where he started in five races, three being stake events. His first race at Belmont was against Nassak and Prate. He defeated the former by a length over a sloppy track, running four and one-half furlongs in :52 3-5.

In the Juvenile Stakes, Groucher was under an impost of 117 pounds and ran second to Dice, which carried 125 pounds. In his final start at Belmont, Groucher was sent to the post in the National Stallion Stakes and won, galloping home in front of six other good colts. Groucher had Earl Sande in the saddle and won by four lengths, going away from Scotch and Soda.

After filling his engagement in the Stallion Stakes, Groucher was shipped to Aqueduct for the Great American Stakes. He was asked to pick up 125 pounds and compete with Dice, Sun Edwin and Distraction. Groucher got off well and raced third all the way around. In the stretch Sun Edwin, which finished second, bumped a few horses and was disqualified and the place position given to Groucher. He was a length behind Dice.

Shows Poorly in Futurity.

At Saratoga he ran unplaced twice with Earl Sande up. He was moved to Belmont for the Futurity after the Saratoga meeting, and performed very poorly. With 19 horses in the race, Groucher broke sluggishly despite Sande's careful handling and was pocketed at the first turn. He never recovered and was galloping at the end to finish thirteenth.

Despite his bad race he was shipped to Havre de Grace where he ran sixth to Happy Time. After that race he went to Churchill Downs to fill his engagement in the Kentucky Jockey Club Stakes. He started in that race and made a creditable showing against Reigh Count, Vito and Algernon.

GAVUZZI FIRST TO STAUNTON IN PLYE MARATHON

By the Associated Press.

STAUNTON, Ill., April 28.—Peter Gavuzzi, bristle-bearded Briton, leading C. C. Pyle's foot race pack, was first into the fifty-sixth control here today after traversing the 42.5 imles from East St. Louis in 5:27:30. He has covered the 2128.7 miles from Los Angeles in 353:28:05, giving him the lowest time in the race.

John Salo, Passaic, N. J., third man in the race, was second today in 5:39:50. His elapsed time is 389:52:43.

Phillip Granville, Hamilton, Ontario, was third in 5:40:45. His elapsed time is 392:33:40.

WEBSTER GROVES WINS FROM FERGUSON, 22-8

Pounding five pitchers for 20 hits, Webster Groves High buried Ferguson High under a 22 to 8 score yesterday afternoon for the fifth victory for the winners in seven games.

The game was marred by an accident that probably will cost Webster the services of Smith, catcher, for the next month. A thrown ball split his right thumb.

PETROLLE SUFFERS SERIOUS EYE INJURY

By the Associated Press.

OMAHA, Neb., April 28.—Billy Petrolle, the "Fargo Express" and one of the challengers for the lightweight championship, probably will have to cancel fights in Detroit, Cleveland, Watertown, S. D., and La Crosse, Wis., because of injuries suffered in his fight last night with Tommy Grogan.

Grogan won when Petrolle was unable to continue at the beginning of the eighth round because of an eye injury, inflicted in the fifth round. Although he had floored Grogan, an Omaha boxer, early in the fight, Petrolle found the injury too great a handicap. He was taken from the ring to a hospital where first examinations indicated the injury was more serious than at first thought.

COMPSTON BEATS HAGEN, 18 UP, IN GOLF MATCN

By the Associated Press.

MOOR PARK, England, April 28.—Playing phenomenal golf, Archie Compston, British professional, conquered Walter Hagen in their 72-hole match for £750, beating him on the first hole of their fourth round today 18 up and 17 to play.

Compston, after his magnificent playing of yesterday on the first 36 holes which left him 14 up, resumed his winning stride this morning and at the end of the third round was 18 up. Going into the fourth round he needed only a half and this he got, the 55th hole being halved in 4.

Hagen barely saved his golf match from becoming a rout when he went to lunch dormy 18 and was unable to win but one hole of the 18 played this morning.

All through the 18 holes Hagen fought heroically, but the lanky Englishman never gave him the ghost of a chance. Compston went round in par figures of 70 to Hagen's 74.

Compston at His Best.

Never before has Hagen suffered such a defeat, nor had the major golf world seen one star defeat another of Hagen's standing so decisively.

Compston excelled in driving and on the greens. Hagen displayed a glaring lack of ability to stop a ball on the: from an approaching distance. He was woefully without the putting genius at which heretofore Britain had marvelled.

The cards for the first nine holes of today's round:

Compston ..4 4 3 4 4 4 3 4 4—34
Hagen ....4 4 4 4 4 4 4 4 5—37

The cards for the second nine holes were:

Compston ...353 454 543—36—70
Hagen ......344 554 543—37—74

Compston Plays Sensationally.

Two phenomenal rounds yesterday gave Compston a 14-hole lead over Hagen.

Never before in his brilliant career has the Debonair Hagen ever been so far behind at the midway point in a match as when the big blond giant of an Englishman, hair tousled and jaw clenched, dropped his final put for a sensational final round of 66. That round, only a stroke above the course record of 65 set by Sandy Herd from the short tees, just about clinched the whole match for Compston. When added to an equally brilliant 67 in the morning round, Hagen shot rounds of 72 and 76.

Layton Trails By 42 Points In Hoppe Tilt

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 28.—A handicap of 42 points confronting Johnny Layton of St. Louis, the national three-cushion billiard champion, as he entered the final two blocks of his 600-point three-cushion exhibition with Willie Hoppe of New York today. With only 100 points to go, Hoppe was leading 500 to 458, in 525 innings.

The rotund St. Louis fisherman picked up 30 points by winning yesterday's blocks and hoped to pick up enough to squeeze through to victory. Experts generally agreed it was improbable, as Hoppe has been at the top of his form throughout most of the match, clicking off clusters of high runs and handing the champion some of the worst defeats of his long career.

PENDLETON AND LONDOS WIN IN MAT MATCHES

By Dent McSkimming.

Professional wrestling held the center of the stage at the Coliseum last night when the game was revived after being in a state of semi-coma since the Lewis-Stecher bout of last February. Some very familiar figures were on the program and two new men were introduced. One of the newcomers, Nat Pendleton, showed to good advantage in pinning Renato Gardini in 28 minutes, 37 seconds. The other, Jack Humberto, mixed too much clowning into his work to be impressive. He was beaten by Jimmy Londos in 25 minutes 35 seconds.

Dick Daviscourt took a fall out of Paul Jones in another of the three headline bouts, and Tommy Marvin defeated Gene Ledoux in the opening event.

Contrary to custom, all bouts were one fall affairs.

Pendelton, built very much like Jimmy Londos but outweighing the Greek by about nine pounds, was not so flashy as his opponent, Gardini, but he seemed to know how to apply his strength. He seemed to lack the versatility of a John Pesek, but he is not quite so deliberate as Joe Stecher. He is not one of the actor type, and Gardini could not show to best advantage because he found nothing to get mad about in Pendleton's clean style. Unless he is keeping something under cover, Pendleton is scarcely as formidable a man as Pesek or Londos, but he is probably a better man than Daviscourt, Jones, Steele, Malcewicz, et al.

Daviscount Uses Headlock.

Daviscourt entered the ring against Jones in well-padded condition. He had about 10 pounds excess flesh on his huge frame, whereas his opponent looked a bit fine. Judged by what skill the men displayed in the course of 37 minutes of work, Jones should have been the winner but Daviscourt was on top when the referee, Harry Cook, declared a victor. Daviscourt won with a headlock.

Although the announcer, Kelly of baseball fame, declared Jack Humberto's weight to be 203 pounds the San Antonio boy appeared to weigh about 187 and later claimed to weigh about 193. Likewise, Gardini was announced as 200 pounds but he says he weighs 196. Londos was announced as 197 and he looked just that, in perfect physical condition. Jimmy will meet John Pesek at Philadelphia next Wednesday evening and he took Humberto on last night by way of preparation. Humberto gave him a pretty good workout, not quite as strenuous as he sometimes gets in the gymnasium, but good enough to bring out a sweat.

SPORT SALAD by L. C. Davis

Lyrics by Limerick Luke.

THERE was a young pitcher named Shaute;
The way to pronounce it I sought.
For the question was moot
And he told me "Shay-oot,"
Which proves in a name there is naught.

While there may be naught in a name,
As many philosophers claim,
We'll say that "Shay-oot,"
Proves beyond all dispute,
That baseball's an uncertain game.

Too True.

But you can't always believe everything you hear at a baseball game. For instance we have heard Taylor Douthit called everything on the calendar except Douthit.

There may be nothing in a name but short-stop English made three boots in one game up in "Big Bill" Thompson's town.

He also made three putouts and three assists which indicates that the gent with the pro-British name was there three ways from the Union Jack.

That heavy hurler, Garland Buckeye of the Indians came pretty near losing a lot of weight the other day when one of his teammates nearly took one of his legs off with a batted ball when running from first to second.

Heavy on the Red.

The man on the sand box says when the Reds copped a 17-inning frolic from the Red Birds it was a red-letter day for "Red" Lucas.

The Birds had the bases full in the fourteenth inning with none out and failed to register. That shows how good "Red" was or how bad the Cards were.

In his ranking of "American pugilists" Paulino Uzcudun says Tom Heeney is "very courageous and sympathetic." He may be all of that but he overlooked America when picking a birth place.

"Sam Bohne Suspended for Attack on Fan."

If John McGraw hadn't let Sammy who is now playing for Minneapolis get out of the National League he might have had a 50 per cent kosher infield.

That young feller Sax who is being used by the Browns as a pinch runner is pretty fast on the sacks. Incidentally he stole 61 of them last year while working for Scranton.

See where old Jack Quinn charter member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery, shut out the Senators with seven hits. Perpetual youth will be served.

Barbershop Chord.

"Browns have a close shave but finally nose out White Sox."

In other words the Browns had a close shave and the Sox got trimmed.

Well, Corn Crop Pyle's Heel-and-toe handicap passed up and passed through St. Louis where they had no control and very little speed.

KNOST IS LIKELY TO APPEAR ON AMATEUR FIGHT CARD, MAY 9

The Motorbus A. C. will hold its last indoor amateur boxing program of the season on Wednesday, May 9, at the Armory, according to Matchmaker George Wilsman, who will endeavor to bring a prominent amateur heavyweight here to oppose Dave Knost in the feature bout.

Al Stillman, finalist at Boston, who probably will make the trip to Amsterdam in the coming Olympic contests, will probably be unable to compete in the coming tournament, due to a broken knuckle on his right hand.

Purdue Loses at Golf.

PEORIA DOUBLES TEAM SETS NEW BOWLING MARK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PEORIA, Ill., April 28.—Frank Schader and Grover Greene of Peoria shattered the two-man team record in the Central States bowling tournament here last night with a 1315 series. Schader contributed 674 pins with score of 244, 194 and 236, while Green had games of 191, 227 and 223 for 641.

Schader came back in the singles with a 641 series to land him in a tie for eighth place.

The Krem Kos of Chicago lead the five-man event with 3055, with the Peoria Lifes second, 3002. S. Sehnert of Peoria tops the singles with 675, while Ed Kneer, Peoria, is first in all events with 1957.

A number of Chicago, Davenport and Kewanee teams are scheduled to roll in the tourney here today and Sunday.

McBRIDE CHECKS RALLY TO BEAT CODASCO, 4-3

With a ninth-inning rally under way, three men on bases and two out, Morgan, Country Day player, was forced to fly out to end the game, and McBride won, 4 to 3, yesterday afternoon on the Brown road diamond.

McBride tallied all their runs in the first three frames, and Country Day was held scoreless until the fourth. Two runs were scored by Codasco in the late rally that almost was successful.

GETS $15,200 JUDGMENT AGAINST JOHN V. WIEDEMEIER

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fischer Claim Bogus Lord Took Their Savings.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fischer of Chicago got a $15,200 judgment in Circuit Court yesterday against John V. Wiedemeier, the bogus Lord Beaverbrook, who is serving 15 years in Sing Sing prison, New York, for swindling women, but two other claims against $15,293 taken from Wiedemeier on his arrest here three years ago and now held here by the Police Department must be decided before they can collect.

The Fischers accused Wiedemeier, whom they knew as Arthur F. Brooks, of swindling them out of their life's savings after he had wooed and married their foster daughter, Esther Wexford, in 1924. She was one of the many women he deceived in numerous cities. In Chicago he posed as a movie producer and promised to take the Fischers to California.

He had a $25,000 roll when he was arrested here in an elopement with the wife of Leonard H. Hoffman, Chicago fur dealer. Payments to bondsmen and lawyers reduced it to the present sum. Hoffman filed a $15,000 alienation of affection suit. Miss Virginia Cameron Martin of Washington, who said the "Lord" married her and then left with $34,000 of her money, put in a claim. Police have filed an interpleader suit to have the claims settled in the courts. Judge Frey handed down th judgment yesterday after hearing the testimony of Fischer, a stationary engineer.

Appeal for Chinese Relief.

New Abdominal Supporter

FREE DEMONSTRATION

By Lady Fitter

Thousands of women are suffering the most trying misery with large, bulging ruptures simply because they do not know what to do for relief. They can find nothing comfortable to wear that will overcome the difficulty. For the benefit of all such women, a free private demonstration will be held at the Jefferson Hotel, 12th and Locust streets, St. Louis, Mo., from Monday morning, April 30, until Saturday evening, May 5. Mrs. M. J. Hudson will demonstrate the famous Collings System for all conditions of rupture without cost or obligation, and every ruptured woman is invited to call.

The demonstrations are absolutely free and every caller will be received privately and individually. If you are ruptured—no matter what kind of rupture, whether at the Navel or on the lower part of the abdomen—don't fail to see this lady fitter. It will cost you nothing for the most instructive and satisfactory hour you ever put in. She will show you wonderful Abdominal Supports designed for stout women with large Navel or After Operation ruptures. She will also supply cool, comfortable Abdominal Supporters for holding up the abdomen where no rupture exists. No matter if your rupture is recent or you have suffered with it for years, you should have the free trial of this remarkable Collings System from which thousands have reported a complete recovery.

Remember the dates, from Monday morning, April 30, until Saturday evening, May 5, and don't fail to call before this splendid opportunity is passed. Let our corsetiere help you choose the right Abdominal support for your type of figure. The model which will properly support your rupture and give you the maximum of comfort and good form.

Call on any of the dates given between the hours of 9 to 12 a. m., 2 to 5 p. m., or 7 to 9 evenings.

American Nurses Care for Victims—British Marines Providing Food — Italy Sends Medicine.

BELGRADE, Jugo Slavia, April 28.—It was reported today that a violent earthquake had been felt at 2 p. m. yesterday at Brod in Slavonia and at various other places in Northern Bosnia. No loss of life has been reported.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, April 28.—Dispatches from the earthquake zones to the Associated Press Bureau in Vienna yesterday told of recurring upheavals in Thrace, Macedonia and Greece, which have caused heavy property damage but the loss of life has not been heavy.

Dispatches, muc hdelayed owing to the crippling of telegraph lines in the affected areas, report that the last vestiges of human habitation in modern Corinth, as well as in all the villages in its immediate environs have been swept away by new earthquakes. Loss of life was not given.

The city of Corinth itself, which Julius Caesar founded as a roman colony 2000 years ago, resembles a vast mortuary, with the skeletons of broken masonry emerging from the ashes like tombstones, to mark what were once cheerful abodes.

American Nurses Give Aid.

Nurses of the American Near East Relief are working valiantly to ameliorate the misery of the terrified populace, but the task is far beyond their strength and resources. More help is needed from abroad. The people insist upon returning to their wrecked homes, declaring they will never abandon the city which gave them "the glory that was Greece."

In other towns of Greece, the population is in describable panic and despair.

Relief work has transcended national lines. While American women of the Near East organizations care for the injured, British Marines are serving soup to the shelterless population. The Italian Government has dispatched a warship to the Gulf of Corinth with medicines and supplies, and an American cruiser is on the way with further succor.

Scarcely had the fresh earthquakes shaken the remains of Corinth when the seaport of Volo and the towns of Lamia and Amori were thrown into a state of terror by similar upheavals.

The Government observatory at Athens announced last night that there had been more than 100 shocks in different parts of Greece yesterday. The greatest sufferers were small towns in Peloponnesus, the part of the country lying south of the Isthmus of Corinth.

Sever Earthquake is Recorded at Georgetown U.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Severe earthquake shocks were registered yesterday on the seismograph of Georgetown University. The disturbance began at 3:44 p. m., and continued for more than two hours, reaching its maximum intensity shortly after 4 o'clock. Director Tondorf estimated that the tremors were centered 3500 miles from Washington. In the last 24 hours, he said, the seismograph has registered seven "after shocks" all of which have been located in the Buglarian district.

Fifteen Earth Shocks in One Hour at Philippolis.

By the Associated Press.

PHILIPPOPOLIS, Bulgaria, April 28.—The body of the well known Italian tenor, De Mazzoi, who was on a concert tour of Bulgaria, was found yesterday under the ruins of the concert hall.

In the space of one hour early yesterday 15 distinct shocks were felt here, in Sofia, Stara Zogora and other towns. No great damage and no loss of life were reported as a result of these new agitations.

TEXAS GOVERNOR DECLINES PLACE ON SMITH DELEGATION

Tells Managers He Is Opposed to New Yorker, On Return from Democratic Conference.

By the Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Tex., April 28.—Gov. Dan Moody has declined to seek a place among the eight Texas delegates-at-large to the Democratic National Convention at Houston, as suggested by State managers of the presidential campaign of Gov. Smith of New York.

"I am not a supporter of Gov. Smith, am opposed to his nomination and have no place among his supporters," the Texas Governor said on his return from a Democratic conference at Dallas. "I feel certain this State will not go for Gov. Smith in the primaries May 5, and if it should the place belongs to someone else."

EXONERATES M'CLINTIC ON FRANKING VIOLATION CHARGE

Massachusetts Congressman Tells House He Had Never Involved Oklahoman in Case.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Completely exonerating Representative McClintic (Dem.), Oklahoma, of any blame, Representative Andrew of Massachusetts explained yesterday in the House his side of the case involving charges that the National Council for the Prevention of War had violated McClintic's franking privilege.

Andrew said he never had accused his colleague of misusing this privilege. He added he had asked the Postoffice Department to investigate charges that the National Council had sent out a solicitation for funds and private literature signed by Frederick J. Libby, an officer of the council, in an envelope bearing McClintic's frank and containing a report opposing the new naval building program.

The council officers have denied the charge and joined in a request with McClintic for an investigation.

Game Refuge Offered to State.

By the Associated Press.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., April 28.—Negotiations have been started for turning over to the State a 3000-acre game refuge, seven mile northwest of here, under lease to the Isaak Walton League. Following the visit of H. I. Piper, field warden of the State Game Department, a committee has been appointed to rush the plans.

GLOBE GIRDLER LEAVES PARIS

PARIS, April 28. — Ryukichi Matsui, westbound Japanese around-the-world racer, took the boat train for Cherbourg to board the Aquitaania today after making a brief visit to Notre Dame where his route book was signed.

A crowd of Parisians, as well as Japanese, including representatives of the Japanese Embassy, were at the station to wish him good luck. The Aquitania will sail from Cherbourg late today.

CHICAGO POLICEMAN SLAIN BY DRUG STORE ROBBERS

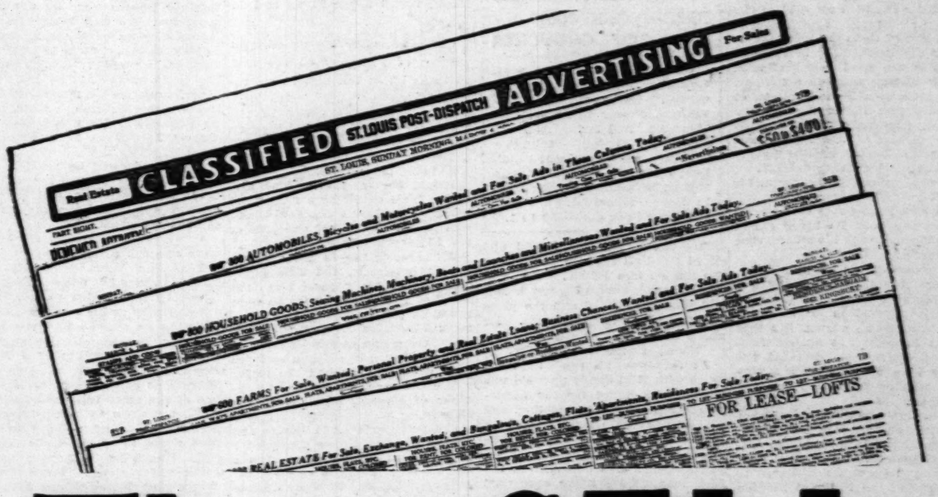

Patrolman, in Civilian Clothes, Had Gone Into Place to Make a Purchase.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, April 28.—Patrolman Arthur Esau was shot dead by drug store robbers last night—the eighth police victim of gunmen bullets here since Jan. 1 and the fourth this month.

Esau stepped into a North Clark street drug store [illegible] clothes to make a purchase. [illegible] men who were holding up the place whirled to face him, their fingers pressed [illegible] fore Esau could even reach his weapon.

The robbers fled, leaving [illegible] to die on the drug store floor, while two clerks in a rear room struggled to release themselves from bonds tightened about their hands and feet by the robbers. Passersby who heard the shots gave the alarm.

They SELL

And They Lead in Selling!

The Post-Dispatch Classified columns are distinctively recognized as sales promoters for everything from Household Utensils to Business Blocks. How St. Louisans value St. Louis newspapers as selling mediums is shown by the way they place their advertisements in the four St. Louis newspapers.

The separate number of advertisements printed by St. Louis newspapers in these selling classes during March follows:

CLASSIFICATION	POST-DISPATCH ALONE	THE THREE OTHERS COMBINED
Automobiles	8816	6390
Business Opportunities	2873	1460
Household Goods	2676	647
Poultry, Birds and Animals	981	321

Horses and Vehicles	346	148
Real Estate	12,959	7596
Farms	832	539
Miscellaneous For Sale	2294	1191

The Post-Dispatch For Sale advertisements include articles from the home and office, from the occasional advertiser, the trading offers of persons who buy and resell and of established dealers.

St. Louisans concentrate in the Post-Dispatch because of superior results and service. For more than a quarter of a century the Post-Dispatch has been the One Big People's Popular Want Medium of St. Louis.

The total number of Real Estate and Want Ads printed by the Post-Dispatch during March was 77,569—32,371 more than the Three Others Combined!

The HUMAN BODY by LOGAN CLENDENING M.D.

The Marvel of the Cell, the Unit of Physical Existence—How It Happens That Each Individual Starts Out in Life With a Half and Half Inheritance From Each Parent.

THE BASIS OF STRUCTURE, CELLS, TISSUES, AND ORGANS.

NOT so long ago, within the memory even of young men, there could be seen in the streets and the cafes of the pleasant little city of Louvain, which had not then acquired its sinister reputation, and was known only to antiquarians with a taste for incunabula and to utilitarians with a taste for plans of strategy, a grave-featured old gentleman wearing the black broadcloth coat with the velvet collar of the Second Empire. He was Theodore Schwann, professor of physiology in the University, and the discoverer of the animal cell.

"To sit and talk with him about the germ theory and the progress of histology," said Professor Ray Lankaster, "was like conversing with someone arisen from the dead."

Well it might be: what changes had come over the world since that far day when, as a young man of 29, he was the first to make out a nucleus in the cells of animal tissue! He had been present at that lovely battle of Organic Evolution; and had watched the terrible gun-fire of Huxley's artillery rake the ranks of the bishops and other clergy, exposing great gaps in their intellectual barriers, and flinging their outworks of dignity and self-sufficiency shivering into the air. He had seen the cavalry of Haeckel and Wallace and Tyndall thunder up the slope, spike the cannon, destroy the ammunition (most of it was wet), capture the enemy's regimental colors, and what prisoners they wanted, such as Romanes, J. A. Froude, and the Vicar of Norwalk, and walk until the infantry under Cope and Weismann and DuBois-Reymond and Williston moved over quietly and in good order and took posession of the field.

He had seen, what was less exciting but really more valuable to the human race, his cells studied by Rudolph Virchow, as the basis of all disease processes, showing that these processes were essentially the same as the normal, that they followed regular and determinable laws. He had been fascinated when a Frenchman, Pasteur, demonstrated the cause of all the plagues and epidemics of mankind and animals. He lived long enough to see the beginning of those investigations into the activity of his precious cells carried on by many men, notably Wilson and McClung in this country, under whose hands the cell seemed to swell into a veritable universe, so diverse and complex were the activities of its microcosmic chromosomes and their accessories. And all the while he had sat in the cafes of the pleasant city of Louvain, sipping his bock, placidly oblivious to the effect which Prof. Victor Horsley thought alcohol had upon his tissues.

The cell doctrine (which he founded along with Schleiden, who first made out cells in plants) states that all living tissues are made up of units called cells, just as all brick walls are made up of units called bricks; it is probably the most important generalization of biology.

No one can understand the processes of the body in health, and even more certainly no one can understand them in disease, unless he thinks in terms of the activities of individual cells or of groups of cells. In most textbooks on biology are set down at great length details of the structure of an ideal cell. It does not seem to me that this is necessary. An examination of the diagram of a cell here reproduced will yield as much information as is required for anyone not technically interested. The distinction between the nucleus and the cytoplasm is obvious.

Certain generalizations about the cell are, however, important. One of these is the method of division. Usually this is accomplished by a complex process, in which the nucleus arranges itself into a long, beaded chain, then breaks up into a definite number of rods, called chromosomes, each chromosome dividing into two, so that the two new cells have an equal amount of the nuclear material of the original cell. All regeneration of tissue, all growth, all healing of wounds, depend upon this property of cells to divide and form new cells.

When a female germ-cell, or egg, is fertilized in the process of reproduction, an interesting and vital variation of this process occurs. The developing egg early begins to form distinct cells, which later become the germ-cells—eggs or sperms—of the new individual. In doing so, the cells divide in a way that never occurs at any other time in the history of the body. The number of chromosomes of the new germ-cells is reduced in number to half that of the rest of the body-cells (this has been called the synapse), the number of chromosomes of the body-cells of any species being invariably constant. Thus when the male and female cells later coalesce in reproduction, each contributes to the first cell of the new individual an equal number of chromosomes, bringing that number up to the standard for the species. Thus also the new individual starts out with an inheritance which is exactly half and half from each parent.

Another conception of fundamental importance for an understanding of cells is that they become specialized, some more highly than others. For instance, muscle-cells have a special structure which gives them the property of contractility. This is their work in the body, and they cannot be made to do any other kind of work. They cannot, for instance, assume the functions of gland-cells, which are endowed with the property of secreting or manufacturing material, usually a juice, useful in the carrying on of the bodily activities. All cells, however, have certain general activities in common—all are able to maintain life in themselves by converting food and air into energy and into protoplasm.

When a number of cells of the same kind are found together, the structure is called a tissue. Thus we distinguish five general kinds of tissue: (1) Epithelial tissue, represented by the skin, by the covering of the inside of the mouth, the coat of the stomach and intestines, etc. (2) Connective tissue, represented by many cell groups differing widely in appearance—by tendons, by bone, by cartilage, by "gristle" (which is sometimes cartilage, sometimes tendinous masses); the connective tissues are the binding or cementing elements in the body and are of great importance. (3) The blood, which is a true tissue, consisting of two different types of cells—the white and the red—swimmnig in a liquid medium, the serum.

(4) Muscle tissue which consists of three types of cells: (a) the voluntary-muscle-cells, such as the muscles of the arm, which we can move at will; and which appear banded under the microscope and are hence called striated; (b) the involuntary-muscle-cells, such as occur in the intestines and contract without any volition on the owner's part, and which, not being banded, are called smooth or unstriated; and (c) the heart-muscle-cells, which resemble in appearance the voluntary, striated, or banded muscles, but which of course, like the unstriated muscles, contract without volition on the owner's part. (5) Nervous tissue, which is made up of very highly specialized cells; they consist of a cell-body from which goes out almost always a long tendril to make contact either (a) with a muscle, for it is by nervous impulses that has been assigned to that structure—the liver is an organ; so is the eye, the kidney, the foot, the skin, the cerebellum.

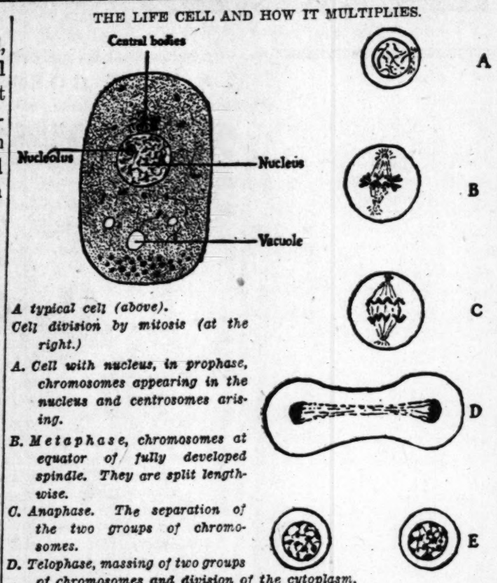

When a group of organs perform a unified series of functions, we call it a system—the digestive sytem, the muscular system, the nervous system, etc. It is these to study, analysing them in order to obtain an idea of their structure, or anatomy (which may be recognized as gross anatomy, that which can be seen with the naked eye; as histology, the finer or microscopic structure; and as embryology, or the method of developments, which throws much light on the technical problems of the anatomist by explaining the reasons for certain structural arrangements, but which we shall not need to dwell upon to any extent in this book); to obtain an idea of their workings, or physiology (which may be merely mechanical, as in the movements of the heart or bladder or chemical, as in the action of the secretions from the glands like the digestive glands, or physico-chemical, depending upon the pressure of chemical solutions, as in the excretion of urine in the kidneys or the absorption of oxygen by the red blood-corpuscles, or what we can call vital, which means that we have as yet no insight into their operation, as illustrated by the impulses along nervous tissues); and to obtain an idea of their changed appearance in disease and the perverted functions which result therefrom.

It is important to remember, however, that, while we analyze them for purposes of study, their functions are interdependent, the whole body going forward as a unit.

Summer Shoes to Be Riot of Colors

INDIAN prints and block printed linens will predominate in the fabrics, while soft, rich hues of blue, green maize, beige, Indian yellows, jade and some shades of red will meet milady's shoe style requirements this summer. This is the advance information that comes from the designers of the shoe factories at Lynn, Mass.

Imitation reptile shoes are believed to be on the wane, but the manufacturers are anticipating an increased demand for the real things in snake and lizard skin shoes. White shoes will be in greater demand this summer than for many seasons past, they believe.

The smartest shoes will have French lines, short foreparts and high arches for dress wear, but the sports shoes will be distinctly American, with stream lines suggesting automobiles or angular wing effects, revealing the "airplane influence."

SEEN ON FIFTH AVENUE

Foxes promise to be even more important this spring than last. Not only will they be worn with the dress and hat costume, but they will form an important part of the coat. Although belonging to the coat, they will be detachable, so that they may be worn with frocks as well.

• • •

The Bertha collar on a robe de style evening frock adds a most youthful and graceful touch.

• • •

The following furs promise to be the smartest for spring wear: beige and platinum fox for the long-haired group; and gray or natural lynx, bleached and dyed mole, platinum band beige broadtail, black caracul, and burunduki, for the flatter pelts.

Organdie in New Role.

Organdie is enjoying a certain prominence in evening dress, either alone or added in the way of trimming to taffeta. Lanvin has an affinity for pink and light blue organdies for evening, and uses white organdie with black taffeta trimming, an unusual and sharp contrast. Very persistent throughout the late collections is this association of pink and blue in evening dress.

WIFE: Ah, hah! You have a cold!

HUSBAND: Whadaya meed gold?

WIFE: How on earth do you suppose you got it?

HUSBAND: How should I dough?

WIFE: Well, I know! I told you not to jump from that heavy winter coat into that light spring one last Sunday! Didn't I?

HUSBAND: Thad had dothig to do with id doughhow!

WIFE: Well, what then?

HUSBAND: How should I dough!

WIFE: There's a reason for everything!

HUSBAND: Baybe so, baybe so, but you cadd search be for this wod—I dod dough what id is. I just god id, that's all. Ad whadya gold to do aboud id?

WIFE: Take a dose of quinine and don't sit there talking so much about it. And take a hot mustard footbath tonight—and you might try to get something for a hot drink.

HUSBAND: Oh, id'll pass away by idself—dough worry dough bore aboud id.

WIFE: Well, if I don't worry about you I should like to know who will!

HUSBAND: But I dode wad dobuddy worryid aboud be!

WIFE: That's all very well, but say suppose you really get sick!

HUSBAND: Oh, but I'b dod gold do really ged sick a-dall!

WIFE: How do you know? You never know what a cold is going to lead to? . . . Oh, Herbert, I wish you would be more careful of your health!

HUSBAND: Whadaya wad be to do? Live id a sterilizig cabded all the tibe?

WIFE: Don't try to be funny—I don't live in a sterilizing cabinet all the time, but you don't see me getting colds the way you do!

HUSBAND: Oh, bud by darlig you're barvelous!

WIFE: There's nothing marvelous about eating simple, wholesome foods, drinking lots of water and getting sufficient rest and exercise, is there?

HUSBAND: Dough.

WIFE: Well, why don't you do it, then?

HUSBAND: Oh, I dod dough!

WIFE: Did it ever occur to you that it is as much your duty to me as to yourself to keep well? Did it?

HUSBAND: Dough—oh, I mead y-y-ye—a-a-a-CHOOOOO! Excuse be. blease! Excuse be!

WIFE: God bless you! . . . But you poor prune, if you realize that, then why do you get this way? I think enough of you to take care of myself! And if I can do it, so can you! Isn't that reasonable?

HUSBAND: Daturally, daturally. dothing could be boreso!

WIFE: I can't remember when I've had a cold, it's so long s-s-s a-a-a-CHOO! Oh, excuse me, I—whatever on earth could have happened to make me a-a-a-CHOOOOOOOO! Excuse me! Why, I——

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

LIFE'S A FLOWER.

LIFE'S a flower. Wear it so,
Like a rose that you would take
From your plot where roses grow
Peering in the mimic lake.

Wear it proudly and be glad
Of the priceless gift you hold;
When were roses ever sad?
Joy, then, as the years unfold!

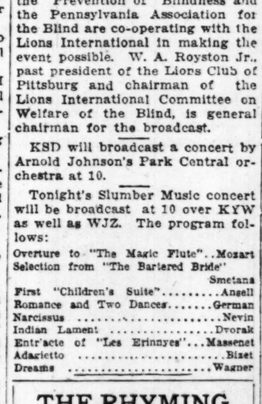

Life's a flower, blooming now
Bright and colorful and sweet;
Prize it justly. Make no vow
Time, in passing, can defeat.

Flowers bud to fade some day.
Life must wither like rare bloom:
But before it droops away.
Share in all its fleet perfume.

YESTERDAY'S ANSWERS

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS.

OLD MR. TOAD APPEARS.

Hold not the humble up to scorn;
Perchance you are no better born.
—Old Mother Nature.

REDDY FOX, finding it was no use to try to get Peter Rabbit, because of Prickly Porky the Porcupine, finally went off about his business. By this time, Scrapper the Kingbird had gone to his nest in another part of the Old Orchard. He had heard Mrs. Scrapper calling him and had not dared remain away any longer. So Peter knew that Jungle stories were at an end for the present. He sat trying to make up his mind just where to go next, and then there suddenly appeared right in front of him Old Mr. Toad.

Peter was startled. He hadn't seen Old Mr. Toad approach. Yet there was Old Mr. Toad sitting right in front of him. "Where'd you come from?" demanded Peter bluntly.

"It is no business of yours where I came from," replied Old Mr. Toad pleasantly, "but just to satisfy your curiosity I'll tell you that I came right out of the ground."

Then, for the first time, Peter noticed that Mr. Toad seemed to be sitting half buried. "Do you mean," said Peter, "that you came right out of the ground where you are now sitting?"

"Of course," said Old Mr. Toad. "Why not?"

"But I didn't see any hole there," cried Peter, looking very much surprised.

"Of course you didn't. There wasn't one there," replied Old Mr. Toad. "I've just dug out. Pleasant, isn't it?"

"Very pleasant, indeed," replied Peter. "But I don't understand about that hole."

"There's nothing to understand that I can see," said Old Mr. Toad. "I was down in here and now I've come out. That's all there is to it."

"Do you mean that you were buried down in the ground?" inquired Peter.

"That's it, Peter, that's it," said Old Mr. Toad. "How did you guess it? I slept a little longer this spring than I meant to. I'm afraid I'm late. Yes, sir, I'm afraid I'm late."

"Late for what?" interrupted Bobby Coon.

"Late for the grand chorus in the Smiling Pool," replied Old Mr. Toad. "If you'll excuse me, I think I'll start along right away. I should be down there singing now."

"Oh!" said Peter, remembering how important Old Mr. Toad thinks his part is in the Smiling Pool chorus. "It's a long way to the Smiling Pool from here, Mr. Toad. Aren't you going to get your dinner first?"

Old Mr. Toad opened and shut his mouth two or three times, as if he were trying to get his jaws limbered up. "I don't want any dinner for a month yet," said he.

"A month?" cried Peter, as if very much in doubt as to what he had heard.

"Tell me all about it, Old Toad," said Peter

"That's what I said," replied Old Mr. Toad testily. "Eating isn't at all important just now. The important thing for me just now is to get down to the Smiling Pool and sing. No one wants to eat when he can sing. If I don't get down there right quick, Mrs. Toad will think something has happened to me. She's probably down there listening for my voice this very minute. You'll excuse me if I leave you, won't you?"

With this, Old Mr. Toad started off, hop-hop-hippety-hop, headed for the distant Smiling Pool.

GOOD BEHAVIOR BEST EDUCATION

By Lucy Lowell.

"EDUCATION," wrote Emerson, "does not mean teaching people what they do not know. It means teaching them to behave as they do not behave.

"It is not teaching the young the shapes of letters and the tricks of numbers and then leaving them to turn their arithmetic to no account and their literature to loss. It means, on the contrary, training them into the perfect exercise and unerringly continence of their bodies and souls.

"It is a painful, continual, and difficult work to be done by kindness, by watching, by warning, by precept and by praise, but above all—by example."

This is what education consists of really, then; not stuffing a child's head with a lot of odds and ends of technical knowledge, but gently, patiently leading him in the way which will develop his finer, physical and spiritual.

You have heard teachers of languages say often enough that the great value of Latin to the young student is not only that it is a foundation for all languages but it is a mental exercise which teaches him how to think.

And, from an academic angle, this is the first essential of all education—that it leads the student of whatever age or degree of mental attainment, to think.

And one who thinks for himself, provided he is a normal human being, will rise along the road of progress; he is bound to develop spiritually as he broadens mentally.

Education, as Ruskin suggests, is not knowledge applied externally to any individual by another; it is the development of subjective potentialities by an individual, usually through the mental guidance of another.

Packing the Suitcase.

The most convenient sets for the suit case of the girl who is moving upon the wing consists of collapsible hat-stand, shoe-trees and squares of cardboard of different sizes with clips attached to the sides. These flat pieces are very valuable for packing frocks, as so that they will emerge at the end of the journey smooth and unwrinkled.

The WIFE

THE STORY SO FAR.

Mrs. Potter, sharp-tongued widow, has come to dinner with Bob and Molly Brownell, bride and groom. Molly used to room at Mrs. Potter's flat. The widow wants to meet Mr. Frazier, Bob's wealthy employer, with a view to matrimony. Molly herself is angry at Mr. Frazier because he has criticised her conduct toward Bob, but she has invited him to come at Mrs. Potter's request. As this chapter opens the three are waiting for him.

CHAPTER XXXVI.

"I THINK your hair needs fluffing out a little at the sides," Molly said, after a critical inspection.

She was reaching out to make the change, but Mrs. Potter pushed her firmly away. "You let me alone. I fixed that hair myself," said she. "Did that idiot of a girl get the wrinkles out of my face? She worked long enough!"

"Your face looks nice," said Molly, tactfully. "How do you like my table?"

She led her ex-landlady into the dining room, where she proudly displayed the new china, and the bright new silver on the white cloth, and a bunch of carnations that she had purchased for the center.

"Who got your dinner for you?" Mrs. Potter inquired.

"I did." Molly was patting the napkins that lay beside each plate. "Aren't my napkins pretty?"

"All napkins are pretty before you spill the soup on 'em," stated the guest. "Who showed you how to cook the dinner?"

"Nobody at all." It didn't seem necessary to explain that the cooking had been done before she bought the food.

"Maybe you'll amount to something yet." Mrs. Potter returned to the living room and took up a position on the couch, commanding a direct view of the door. "When is that man coming?"

"He's due now," Molly said. She returned to the kitchen to inspect the meat that was warming in the oven, and to arrange the potato salad on its bed of lettuce leaves.

Brownell came in a few moments warmly greeted Mrs. Potter, and sought Molly where she hovered over the stove. There was a worried look in his eyes, and she noticed it at once.

"What's the matter—can't Mr. Frazier come!" she asked, as he stooped to kiss her.

"He's on his way. I just left him at the office. But, Mollykins—he says he can't have a husband and wife working together in his office."

"Why not?" She dropped her long basting spoon to her side.

"He says that a husband and wife in the same place are a gang—just like two brothers make a gang. And gangs make trouble, he says."

"I wish we hadn't invited him!" She gave a poke at the roast of beef with the spoon "I wonder why he hates me so!"

"He doesn't hate you, sweetheart—he told me he liked you. He advised me not to let you go to work."

She lowered the fire beneath the oven and closed the nickeled door. Her face, as she straightened up, gave evidence that she was preparing to give a heated opinion of Mr. Frazier, but this opinion was not delivered. A quick ring of the bell gave warning that Bob's employer had arrived.

Molly's apron was off when she opened the door. Mrs. Potter, her legs crossed, was leafing over a magazine which she had seized upon in haste.

I'm so glad you could come," Molly said, offering her hand. Mrs. Potter, this is Bob's employer —Mr. Frazier."

The man nodded to Brownell and advanced to bow before the woman on the couch.

"So you're the one," said Mrs. Potter

Mr. Frazier showed surprise. "What one?" he inquired.

"The one that didn't want these young people to get married."

He glanced at Molly and Bob. "I see they've taken you into their confidence," he said, smiling.

"I should think you'd have enough to do without interfering with other people's love affairs," the warlike lady went on. "Look at 'em! Billing and cooing in their own apartment. She isn't one of these crazy married women that go out and hustle a job so they can buy duds for themselves!"

This was unfortunate, and Brownell, in great embarrassment, hurriedly intervened.

"Mrs. Potter was Molly's landlady," he explained. "Isn't this a nice view out the window?" He pulled up the curtain and indicated the street light across the way. "We like this place fine."

Mr. Frazier thoughtfully turned his regard from Mrs. Potter to Brownell and back again. He took the chair that Molly brought forward, and stood holding it while he waited for his hostess to sit down.

"You are a woman of experience," said he to Mrs. Potter, when Molly settled herself upon the couch.

"Me? I'll say so. Any woman who has lived with Bill Potter and buried him has had experience." She smoothed her skirt and looked at him as if defying contradiction.

"He was your husband, I take it," said he.

"Yes—worse luck. If he'd had any backbone and had made me mind my own business, I wouldn't be where I am today. You're a

He slid down in his chair and crossed his ankles, his thumbs hooked in his trousers pockets. "The idea has been suggested to me," he said, blandly. "Just why do you think I ought to marry, madam?"

Mrs. Potter gave a sharp, unexpected cackle of mirth. "Every woman thinks every man should marry! And they don't see why any woman should marry except themselves. You ought to hear 'em when they're together."

"I'm sure I'd enjoy it," said he. "That is, I'd enjoy hearing the ladies when they're together."

Though Molly and Brownell were exchanging glances of uneasiness, it was evident that both their guests were highly entertained.

"I hate women," Mrs. Potter continued.

"Do you hate men, also?"

"Not so much. Of course, I hate everybody sometimes — who doesn't? Lord, there's been evenings when I've sat and rocked and hated people till bedtime—people I hardly knew to speak to."

"I think," said Molly Brownell, "that dinner's all ready if you'd like to come."

Brownell led Mrs. Potter to the dining room, Mr. Frazier following with his hostess. Molly served the soup, and sat down with the others.

"You want to let these young folks alone," the widow recommenced. "I've panned them myself—but that's no reason why you should."

"We older people take a great interest in the young folks," the man observed.

"We're a lot of interfering old fools," Mrs. Potter declared. "If we'd let 'em alone they'd be a great deal happier."

"But sometimes can't we help them along by a little advice?" He eyed her over the spoonful of soup he had raised to his lips.

The woman blew heavily through her nose. "Did you ever take advice? Did I ever take advice? Did anybody ever? I should say not! Look here. Frazee——"

"Mr. Frazier," Molly corrected.

Mrs. Potter paid no heed, but continued without pausing "—if anybody had advised you not to get married when you were engaged, what would you do?"

He smiled appreciatively. "I know what I did do. I went ahead and got married."

"Same here. They told me Bill Potter was a poor fish, and he was. If they'd wanted me to throw him over, they should have told me to marry him."

"I think," said Mr. Frazier, "that your philosophy is sound."

"You bet. Now if you'd called in this boy and girl here, and cussed them for not getting married, they'd be single and happy now!" She beamed at the circle around her. "Wouldn't you?"

"No," said Brownell.

"Of course not," Molly said.

"Poppycock. Of course you'd be single. The chances are you'd have quit speaking. That"——she swung back to Bob's employer—"is why I think you're a fool, Frazee."

Molly, much harassed, removed the soup plates and brought in the roast of beef. There was a lull in the conversation until she had placed the salad plates, and Brownell had begun to slice the meat.

"How's that Dutch girl down at your office? That Dumwite, or whatever it is?" Mrs. Potter leaned across the table toward Mr. Frazier.

"Miss Holmquist? You know she had—an accident?" he inquired.

"Accident!" She sniffed. "A husband's no accident."

"I didn't refer to her marriage. She was—well, she was hurt—physically damaged."

"Ho!" Mrs. Potter prepared to listen. "Who damaged her? That no-good, money-borrowing scalawag she married, I'll bet!"

The man hesitated.

"Go ahead. I'll find out anyway," the widow urged. "And besides, maybe I can help—I know where he's gone."

To Be Continued Monday.

The Right Way to Clean the Matting

USE a soft brush for sweeping mattings, as well as fibre and grass rugs. Water is apt to discolor these floor coverings, so must be used very sparingly. The vacuum sweeper will clean them satisfactorily.

Occasionally wash with a cloth moistened in hot salt water. Wash only a small space at a time and wipe immediately with a dry cloth. Use a handful of salt to a pail of hot water. If this method is always followed, matting will not turn yellow.

When housecleaning days come around, take the matting and rugs outdoors and lay them flat. Sweep on both sides, but never beat nor shake this type of floor covering.

If badly soiled dissolve a little oxalic acid in water and scrub with a brush, follow immediately with clear water and dry quickly. Grease spots will disappear if you cover them with prepared chalk moistened with turpentine.

The quaintest and dearest of little dressing table stools is oval and covered with a charming bit of glazed chintz, with a perky little ruffle piped in color.

TRAIN KILLS ONE, INJURES ANOTHER ON MOTORCYCLE

E. J. Mort, Fatally, and K. I. Youngberg Seriously Hurt When Run Down on Burlington Tracks.

APPARENTLY SAW DANGER TOO LATE

They Had Just Driven Up Steep Grade at Biddle and Main When Accident Occurred.

An inbound Burlington railroad passenger train struck a motorcycle with a sidecar at Biddle and Main streets last night, killing Earl J. Mort, a painter, 1406 South Ninth street, and gravely injuring the owner and driver of the machine, Karl I. Youngberg, a steeplejack, 119A South Broadway.

Youngberg was driving the motorcycle west in Biddle street up a steep grade. Both were thrown from their seats and their skulls were fractured.

Youngberg, who is also a contracting painter, with an office at 309 South Broadway, had taken Mort to the Ashley plant of the Union Electric Light and Power Company, on the river front, a block from the scene of the accident. Mort was employed there and went to call for mail. The men were returning from the plant at 8:15 o'clock when the train struck the machine from the rear as the driver made an attempt to avoid the crash.

A railroad switchman heard the crash and ran to the aid of the two men. He found them lying on the cinder bed between two tracks. Apparently, as they were pitched out, their heads struck the rails on the ties of the adjoining track. The motorcycle and the sidecar in which Mort was riding were not badly damaged. The driver, turning in an effort to escape the train, had avoided being struck broadside.

Youngberg, 30 years old and unmarried, and Mort, 38, were inseparable friends. Six months ago Youngberg was injured in a 30-foot fall from an apartment house where he was repairing an awning. Mort is survived by his widow, Lottie.

THREE HURT BY FALLING WALL AT PENNSYLVANIA U. RELAYS

Fifty Persons Flung to Running Track at University as Racers Go Past.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—Three persons were injured, one internally, when a seven-foot wall between the south stand seats and the running track at the University of Pennsylvania collapsed today as Charley Paddock rushed to a new world's record for 175 yards.

The race in which Paddock was running against University of Pennsylvania sprinters, was one of the feature events of the Pennsylvania relay carnival. The crowd in the stand pressed forward to the front row seats and was leaning over and against the wall as the starter's pistol cracked. Just as the runners passed the weak spot in the brick wall a section of 25 or 30 feet long fell outward and flung 50 persons, many of them boys and girls, onto the track. Most of them scrambled back into the stand, but three were taken to the University of Pennsylvania Hospital nearby.

Those injured are John Carriman, 12 years; Lawrence Paciela, 16, and Edward Myers, 13, all of Philadelphia.

Dr. Arthur Light, physician to the Pennsylvania football field, who was on the field, attended several persons in the gymnasium at Franklin Field.

OFFERS VOTE FOR HEFLIN BILL IF ALABAMAN WILL BE STILL Though Norbeck Makes His Offer Fair, All the Senator Does Is Glare.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—Senator Norbeck (Rep.), South Dakota, offered in the Senate today a vote for a bill by Senator Heflin (Dem.), Alabama, if Heflin would refrain from making a speech he announced he would make. The Alabaman had given notice of the speech when Senator Bingham (Rep.), Connecticut, objected to consideration of his bill to prohibit price predictions on cotton by the Department of Agriculture.

"I will vote for the bill," Norbeck interposed, "if the Senator will refrain from making his speech."

Heflin made no reply.
